Circus delights crowds

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

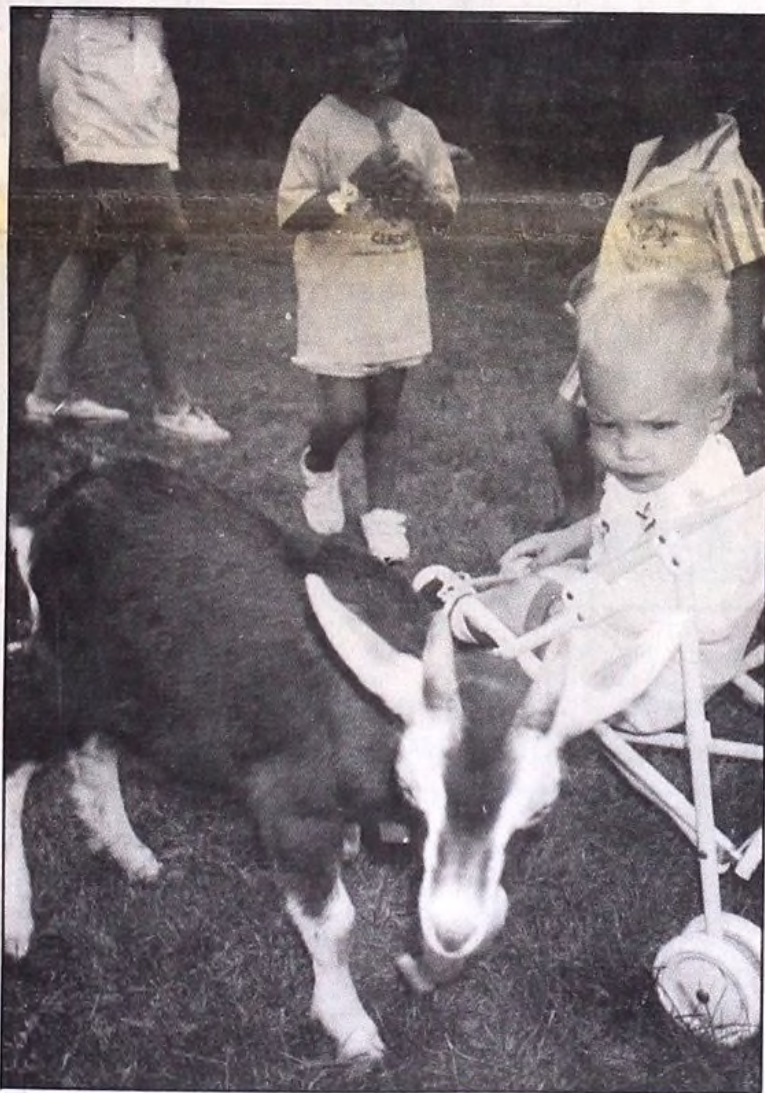

Nearly 1,000 Romulus area residents braved high temperatures and humidity last Wednesday to enjoy the joys and excitement offered by the Franzen Brothers Circus.

The circus goes, many of them young children, enjoyed the early views of the circus as Okha the elephant led the circus crew in raising the circus tent and later strolled through downtown Romulus an hour or two prior to the first performance of the day.

Hundreds of tots and older children and their parents and grandparents toured the petting zoo before and after the 4:30 and 7 p.m. show, or joined in the shaded pony rides.

While the constant 90-degree heat trimmed the Michigan circus crowds last week, once the performances began, on-lookers seemed to forget the soaring temperatures.

Various animal acts, particularly the tigers, elephants and camels, proved tremendous crowd favorites, and the Carlos Twins from Germany stunned the viewers as one of the pair balanced herself on one finger.

Lighting project is 'turned off'

By AL POST

A consideration for street lights for Applewood Subdivision residents was turned off Monday night by members of the Romulus City Council.

Earlier this year, a group of Applewood residents had petitioned the council for information on financial costs of installing street lights in their subdivision.

On June 15 a public hearing was conducted and a small band of opponents questioned the installation and annual cost of the lights.

Council members slated the

Monday night meeting to finalize the residents' views on the light system...that would have included a special assessment.

Several objectors stood up at the recommendation of Mayor pro tem Mary Ann Banks and said they felt it would be cheaper to have homeowners install their own outdoor lights rather than contract with Detroit Edison for street lights.

A requested show of hands revealed that only four people in the audience and two letter writers expressed support for the light installations.

The council members also were told a survey of the 86 occupied homes was done and 54 property owners were opposed to the light installations.

Council members decided to allow the petition to die, but praised the subdivision residents for their democratic actions.

"This was small town government at its best," Councilman Russell Lambert said.

Mayor Beverly McAnally also cited the council for heeding the public's input. "It was a judgment call and the citizens have spoken and told us they do not want the lights installed at this time."

Insults fuel tax battle

Assessor blames school delay

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Romulus residents will receive their tax bills two weeks late, City Tax Assessor Matt Raftary charged because of an "inexcusable" delay in millage rate information supplied by the Romulus School District.

In a memo to Mayor Beverly McAnally, Raftary charged the "foremost reason" for the delay in mailings was that the "Romulus School District failed to adopt and submit millage rates to the city until June 30.

"Such a delay in submitting millage rates is inexcusable and the City Treasurer (James L. Napiorkowski) should consider the enforcement of the collection agreement which requires submission of millage rates by dates certain if summer collections for the school district are to be performed," Raftary continued.

The city assessor also stated he asked in a June 4 memo to Napiorkowski that the treasurer's office cooperate "in our supervision of the preparation of tax rolls" since "it is the responsibility of the assessor to prepare the tax roll."

Raftary said he "expressly instructed" Napiorkowski "not to print bills until we had verified all of the tax spreads."

Raftary said when he found that the treasurer had used erroneous millage rates for the Romulus School District, he notified Napiorkowski of the error "but much to our dismay, we were informed the printing of the rolls and bills were nearly complete."

Later Raftary said he discovered that "millage rates for the Woodhaven School District

James Napiorkowski

(also) were incorrect...and unfortunately once again the treasurer had authorized the reprinting of the tax roll and bills."

The tax assessor charged "failure to mail tax bills by July 1 does not wholly rest with the treasurer, but with the school district. Receipt of millage rates on June 30 makes it impossible to prepare tax bills in a timely manner."

Raftary then continued his blast at the treasurer's office by saying "in his rush to mail the bills, accuracy and proper procedures were neglected."

Raftary continued, "Therefore it is our recommendation that, in the future, the treasurer not be allowed to print tax rolls or bills without the prior written approval from the assessor."

Citing the city contract with the schools regarding the summer levy of taxes which expressly states a deadline for the submission of millage rates for inclusion on the summer tax roll, Raftary demanded, "This clause should be strictly enforced in the future thus eliminating delays in preparing the tax roll and bills and our need to rush the process of preparing a summer tax roll."

Treasurer blames assessor

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Both Dr. William Bedell, superintendent of the Romulus Schools, and City Treasurer Jim Napiorkowski expressed deep concern regarding a recent letter supplied to them by City Assessor Matt Raftary.

"I'm not really sure why the assessor feels obligated to attack the treasurer and the school districts about what Gov. (John Engler) and the rest of the world considers a relatively insignificant delay in the tax bills," Bedell told the members of the school board Monday.

Raftary's actions helped create the delay, Bedell wrote to the board members, as the information Raftary supplied them was "incorrect" and "we had to wait for the county information before we made (our) calculations."

Bedell continued, "Before we can establish the final tax rates, we must have the SEV (State Equalized Valuation) from either the city or the county. We did not receive this information until mid-June and the county inadvertently used last year's data.

"When Joel (Carr, assistant superintendent in charge of school finances) discovered it, he called them (the county) and we had to wait until June 16th to get the official corrected information for this year," Bedell explained.

"I have attached for you, the letter from the county treasurer dated June 14, 1993 giving the actual SEV. Obviously, we could not schedule your setting the tax rate until the

Salvation Army relocation delayed again by council

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

An emotion-packed Romulus City Council chambers watched Monday night as scores of former and current substance abuse victims shed their anonymity to face cable TV cameras and admitted the Salvation Army gave them hope, a job and a chance to return to their families when no one else would.

They, along with numerous women Salvation Army workers and Men's Rehabilitation leaders, pleaded with city council members to rezone an empty 36 acre parcel of land at Middlebelt and Van Born roads which has been unused for 15 years so that the men's rehabilitation unit, thrift store and sorting factory could be moved there.

The Salvation Army clients-known as benefactors-touched the hearts of many on the council and those in the audience with their heartfelt cries of life changing experiences brought on by the Salvation Army staff.

But when the lengthy council session failed to bring the fifth pro rezoning vote needed by the Salvation Army to guarantee the relocation from the current location on Goddard Road to the planned site at Middlebelt and Van Born, Councilman Jimmie Raspberry cried out to his council peers, "I've been touched to night by the courage of these men and women. What does it take to touch you?"

Two opponents of the move in attendance-Councilmen Russell Lambert and William Wadsworth-refused to change their negative votes that were first expressed at the June 28 meeting.

At that time the council voted 4-3 in favor of the rezoning effort, but the transfer of Salvation Army sites still requires five council votes to become final.

Sensing the Salvation Army

did not have the fifth vote Monday night, Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron asked the rezoning question be tabled until the absent Councilman Randolph Gear could be in attendance.

Union supports senator

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

United Auto Workers (UAW) members in Wayne were in full support of U.S. Senator Don Riegle who shared his views on the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) last week at the Local 900 headquarters on Michigan Avenue.

Riegle expressed his major concerns about NAFTA and stated that he is strongly against U.S. workers jobs being exported to Mexico.

"He had some very strong points and was very inspiring," UAW President Jeff Washington said. "He emphasized how NAFTA would hurt the country. Our emphasis is on protecting jobs, and he stated NAFTA would not protect jobs."

President Bill Clinton was expected to submit the NAFTA agreement which creates a free-trade zone with the U.S., Mexico and Canada to Congress in September for ratification by the end of the year.

If approved, the treaty would become effective Jan. 1. It extends a current free-trade agreement between Canada and the U.S. to Mexico.

Riegle stated NAFTA marks the first time countries of vastly different levels of economic development have attempted to enter into a free trade agreement.

He said NAFTA, as presently drafted, "fails to insure fair trade or serve vital strategic American interests in several areas." Those areas include inadequate provisions to ensure fair wages, health and safety standards for workers and strong and enforceable environmental safeguards.

"NAFTA must also provide a level playing field for strategic American interests in the agricultural and energy sectors, and, at present it does not," Riegle said.

One of the threats of NAFTA, according to Riegle, is the effect the agreement will have on U.S. manufacturing jobs.

"Recent bilateral trade history indicates that if NAFTA is implemented as now drafted, America's biggest export to Mexico will be American jobs, particularly American manufacturing jobs," Riegle said.

The most important economic goal for the U.S. within the next four years is creating at least eight million new jobs, according to Riegle.

"These jobs must enable a worker to earn a middle class standard of living and provide health insurance and pension benefits," Riegle said. "Yet, there is a vast wage differential between the U.S. and Mexico. Currently third-world wages in Mexico are approximately 1/10th of the wages in the U.S."

"Forcing American workers to compete with Mexican workers earning 1/10th their wages will result in an unprecedented decline of the U.S. wages and our national standard of living." Riegle said he strongly supports Clinton's efforts to fund technology programs and provide incentives for growth industries in his broad economic growth package.

"But these programs will take time to succeed," Riegle said. "In the meantime, U.S. workers should not have their jobs exported to Mexico."

Another argument, according to Riegle, of those supporting NAFTA is that it will eventually result in job growth in the U.S. by creating one of the world's largest trading blocs.

"They argue that as the Mexican economy grows and Mexican workers standard of living increases, Mexicans will buy more U.S. products, thus increasing U.S. jobs," Riegle said. "This argument is simply not supported by the facts."

"During the 1980s when tens of thousands of U.S. jobs were being sent south to Mexico, real wages in Mexico actually declined by more than 50 percent. And there is no reason to assume that their wages or standard of living will increase after NAFTA is implemented."

As drafted, Riegle stated that NAFTA does little to provide effective enforcement of fair labor standards.

"If NAFTA is implemented, and Mexican labor standards do not approve, the standard of living of American workers will decline," Riegle said.

Veteran's group plans blood drive

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Harris-Kehrer Post 3323 are planning a blood drive from 2 until 8 p.m. Aug. 6.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the post headquarters, located at 1055 South Wayne Road, near Avondale, during this time to collect blood from donors.

The event has been scheduled due to the drain in blood supplies usually necessitated during the Labor Day holiday in September. Red Cross statistics indicate that blood is needed in life-threatening situations once every 17 seconds throughout the nation.

Information regarding the event or appointment scheduling is available by phoning 427-3223. Walk-in donors will be welcomed, although appointments are encouraged, according to a spokesman.

Technology pacts are awarded

Contracts totalling $42,201 for interior design on the new technology areas of Romulus Junior High School have been awarded to Interior Concepts of Spring Lake.

The designs were listed for Room 186 ($18,760) and Room 168 ($18,358) by Cindy Wessel, national manager of Interior Concepts. An additional $5,083 will be charged for delivery and installation.

Teacher granted extended leave

Charlotte Huby has been granted a four month extension of her educational leave by the Romulus School Board.

Huby had sought and was granted a leave of the last semester of 1992-93 (four months) by a prior board action. On Monday she was granted a leave for the period covering the first semester of 1993-94.

Memberships are renewed by board

Three key educational and athletic association memberships were approved Monday by the Romulus School Board.

They included: the Michigan Association of School Boards; Michigan High School Athletic Association, Inc.; and the Michigan Out-of-Formula District Association.

Library-City Hall bids to be requested

The first of bids for the summer-fall asbestos abatement projects and the alterations at Mount Pleasant School, site of the temporary Romulus Public Library, are expected to be public later this week by the Romulus Building Authority.

City Treasurer James Napiorkowski expects the first bids to be requested will be for moving expenses of the library supplies and furniture to Mount Pleasant and back, as well as the move from City Hall to the public library.

Other bids will include those involving the actual asbestos abatement project.

Board members are reappointed

Four city reappointments recommended by Mayor Beverly McAnally have been approved by members of the city council.

Renamed through June 30, 1996 for the Board of Appeals were Stanley Kreft and Tom Williams.

Renamed through May 10, 1996 for the Romulus Building Authority were James Napiorkowski and Steve Trahey.

Authorities raid Landing Strip

Federal tax and drug agents along with Romulus police recently raided the Landing Strip restaurant and bar, as well as the homes of the business owner and manager.

Romulus Police Lt. David Early said agents of the Internal Revenue Service and the Drug Enforcement Agency joined Romulus police in the 9 a.m. raids on July 1.

Early admitted that office records were confiscated at the Landing Strip Lounge on Goddard Road.

Early refused to divulge the nature of items confiscated from the homes of owner Tom Nappo and manager Paul Parinello.

Police Chief Fred Dansby revealed earlier this was the first raid of this type at the topless bar. He said the investigation is continuing.

Summer reading program continues

The summer reading program at the Romulus Public Library will continue at 7 p.m. tonight as Linda Day will offer more of her "Fishy Tales."

Jellybean the Clown explains the art of clowning to young Rebecca Lewkowicz, just after returning from his visit with the Romulus Rotary members.

were extremely appreciative that many of the food, drinks and souvenirs cost only $1.

Because of the heat, it appeared that cold drinks and flavored ices outsold pop corn by better than two to one.

Mark Lewkowicz, president of the sponsoring Romulus Chamber of Commerce, observed, "The circus does not exist in Romulus the day before or the day after, but while it is here it is like a city within a city."

"The circus needs only added water supplies during its stay here and that is supplied with a garden hose," Lewkowicz said. Franzen Brothers provides its own electricity via a generator.

"I'm still amazed at how hard each of the circus performers-employees work from sun up to sundown," Lewkowicz said. "A circus worker is in the grandstand selling you a pennant and 10 minutes later he is in the center of the circus ring performing for an appreciative crowd."

"The performer is seen with his back on a special platform with his legs in the air, while one of his daughters stands on his feet, while another daughter is perched on her shoulders as they delight the viewers with a hazardous aerialist routine," Lewkowicz continues.

"There is a certain amount of nostalgia of a traveling circus visiting Romulus," Lewkowicz concluded, "as you realize that even the famous Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circuses performed in huge non-air conditioned tents in the late 1940s."

The Romulus Junior High School band also entertained residents and visitors for an hour between performances.

As an extra treat, Jellybean the Clown (Matt Coes), took time out of his busy day to speak before the Romulus Rotary Club.

Jellybean surprised the local businessmen by telling them he is a retired educator, having served as a grade school principal.

He has earned two bachelor degrees, a master's degree and is within 30 hours of his Ph D degree.

Jellybean revealed he "always enjoyed circuses as a youth and later became a spot clown for various events before retiring."

Today he works his comedy routines seven days a week, two shows a day throughout various cities across the U.S.

Like most of the other family members at the Franzen Brothers Circus, Jellybean is joined by his wife, who creates and repairs many of the circus performers' costumes. They live in a trailer on the road.

Jellybean also brought the crowd at the circus performances into the action by leading them in a rhythmic clapping routine set to music.

Barbara Thompson, circus ticket taker, said tour members are extremely proud that they attract family audiences across the U.S., since they are a group of family members themselves.

"We are a drug free work place," Thompson said, "and we do not tolerate alcohol abuse from staff members or circus goers."

The circus opens on April 1 and closes on Nov. 1, she explained, with only Easter Sunday off. After leaving Romulus, the circus was scheduled to travel to Milan and Adrian.

Next year the circus plans to sport a new "mushroom style" tent, Thompson explained, which eliminates holes in the roof where the poles protrude.

"We planned to purchase it this year," she said, "but it was decided instead to buy new trucks and delay the tent purchase one year."

She explained that the owner, Wayne Franzen, also serves as circus veterinarian and is often praised for the top physical condition of his animals.

Lewkowicz said the Romulus Chamber of Commerce members would make a decision regarding sponsoring the circus again next year and notify the community as soon as possible.

Blackout hits area

Although lights went out in Wayne for a few hours last Friday, residents can consider themselves fortunate.

Approximately 73,000 Detroit Edison customers in southeast Michigan were waiting for power for more than half a day, according to Mary Kay Bean, Detroit Edison spokesperson.

"In the case of Wayne and Romulus, a lighting bolt struck a trunk line in that area about 2:13 p.m. Friday," Bean said. "We were able to restore power by 4:30 p.m. at one substation and at 6:15 p.m. at the other substation."

Bean was unable to confirm exactly where the lighting bolt struck. The areas that were affected by the jolt included Palmer Street, Van Born, Merriman and Newburgh.

"Approximately 9,000 Detroit Edison customers in that area were affected," Bean said. "That storm knocked out power for many areas in southeast Michigan."

Wayne police officers directed vehicles at the major intersections in the city as traffic lights remained out of order during the afternoon hours. As a result of their efforts, no traffic fatalities occurred, according to Wayne police Lt. Dan Randall.

"Everything went smoothly," Randall said. "We had no traffic problems or accidents."

As of July 12 Bean said service for all the Detroit Edison customers affected by the storm was back to normal.

Anti-drug funding slashed

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Police Chief Fred Dansby said that a lack of co-funding from the Romulus School District is forcing the Romulus Police Department to cut the Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) officer manpower for the 1993-94 school year.

Dansby said he had written to Superintendent of Romulus Schools Dr. William Bedell last January and asked if the schools could remit $51,549 to cover the cost of one DARE officer.

"I just haven't heard any reply," Dansby said, "so we will have to cut our DARE force from two full time officers to one and a half."

The full-time DARE officer will be John Leacher and the part-time officer will be Darin Wright.

It has not been decided exactly how that cut will be effected, Dansby said, but it will mean a cut in school visits of some type.

Dansby said he was saddened by the cut, since Romulus was the first city in Michigan to implement such a high school program.

Both Dansby and Joel Carr, assistant superintendent of schools for financial matters, admitted the past DARE operations were funded with drug forfeiture money.

Carr said, "We just have never budgeted for such a line item in the past." But he admitted the school district 1993-94 budget has not been finalized.

In his letter to Bedell, Dansby explained "Drug forfeiture funds are virtually depleted at the present time. It seems the drugs are still around, but the people involved are not carrying large sums of money with them anymore."

"As a result," Dansby continued, "our seizures are down and therefore, we must cut back on services that we now are providing."

According to the minutes of the March 8, 1993 school board meeting, the school trustees voted to table the police chief's fund request until the fall when budget considerations were acted upon.

(school board) meeting of June 28th."

Wayne County Treasurer Raymond Wojtowicz's letter to municipal treasurers and school superintendents stated, "Our recent mailing dated June 11, 1993, regarding Act 35 of the Public Acts of 1979, we inadvertently sent incorrect enclosures."

He included financial figures including the 1993 Wayne County Millage Reduction Fractions for cities and local schools that the local financial chiefs could review.

"We apologize for any inconvenience these incorrect documents may have caused you," Wojtowicz concluded.

Bedell reminded school board members, "We should remember that Engler wanted the tax bills delayed until July 17, if Proposal A had been approved by the voters in June."

On Tuesday, Napiorkowski sent his letter to Mayor Beverly McAnally addressing "concerns which I have regarding the new procedure of transferring the tax data from the assessor's office to the city's main system."

Napiorkowski said the memo would also act as a response to Raftary's earlier memo to McAnally.

Napiorkowski said he had requested Raftary take part in a computer data test prior to the tax billing date, since this was the "first tax collection of which the data would come directly from the assessor and not the county."

My concern was to assure that the data transfer was complete without any problems, simply as a manner of a test.

The city treasurer said Raftary "did not feel it was necessary and preferred to wait until after the June 2nd special election, since if the voters approved Proposal A various changes in assessments would need to be made."

"My concern was to assure that the data transfer was completed without any problems, simply as a manner of a test," Napiorkowski wrote.

"The test files were not sent until June 23," Napiorkowski complained, "and at that time we found one parcel had an incorrect assessed value, 88 special assessment items were identified to parcels which no longer existed and 645 parcels had to be edited for owner name and address."

Napiorkowski explained, "The data received from the

Gear also voted no on the rezoning matter in June and now becomes the swing vote in this issue.

Another attempt at a final vote on the rezoning issue apparently will be taken on July 26, if a full council is in attendance. Otherwise the vote could be delayed again.

Both sides of the rezoning battle used every emotional weapon possible in their attempts to sway the council, but each council member repeated his or her previous rezoning vote.

While the Salvation Army enlisted "volunteers" to speak before the council, the opposition passed out copies of a Sunday Eagle and Enterprise story about a murder suspect arrested at the Salvation Army ARC in Romulus earlier this year.

Mark Radford, the most vocal citizen opponent of the rezoning request, also stood by as his young son, James, read a letter opposing the effort into the official record.

The young protester asked that the rezoning be denied so no animals would be forced out of the area and that he, his family and neighbors would still feel comfortable cycling on the property in question.

assessor was far from being accurate."

"Raftary has made reference to the agreements between the City of Romulus and the Romulus and Woodhaven School Districts...which indicate should the school districts not provide millage rates by June 1 of the given year the city can then forego any collection for said schools during the summer," Napiorkowski continued.

While admitting he did not negotiate the current agreements, Napiorkowski said he "will not put the school districts in financial difficulty for the lack of receiving the rates in a timely fashion."

Napiorkowski said he disagrees with Raftary's feelings that the city should "let the school districts" worry about the tax problems if they are not on time.

But he does feel that because of the difficulties this year, the contracts should be renegotiated.

Napiorkowski said Raftary should keep in mind that "state law requires him to complete a assessment roll by the 10th day after adjournment of the Board of Review or the Wednesday following the first Monday in April, whichever occurs first."

Napiorkowski said, "With this Raftary should have no difficulty in providing the tax roll all data with the exception of millage rates by May 1...and comply with the city charter which requires the tax roll to be delivered to the treasurer on or before June 15."

Radford also said his petition against the rezoning was signed by all Romulus residents, while a Salvation Army petition was filled with names from outside the area.

The Salvation Army legal team complained they were being blocked at every turn, since council opponents said they will not support such a facility near any residential neighborhoods within the city, while city requirements state such rehabilitation units can only be located in multi-family zoned areas.

Lt. Col. Marcus Stilwell, commander of the Salvation Army Central Territory, warned that if Romulus rejects such a move by the Christian group, it might force the closing of the ARC and the laying off of 73 employees.

"Eighty or more men also will lose their homes if the ARC unit closes here," Stilwell quipped, but in that case "maybe you'll invite them into your homes."

Wadsworth later chided Stilwell by saying he doubted the layoff threat would actually be put into action by a Christian group.

Gun battle

Romulus councilman criticizes laser device

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Are the newly created "laser speed guns" a tremendous life saving weapon for local traffic officers or are they just another tool for "lazy policemen?"

A heated battle by supporters of both sides was conducted last Tuesday night as Romulus Police Chief Fred N. Dansby asked members of the Romulus City Council for permission to purchase a $3,900 laser speed detection unit.

After a 45-minute verbal battle in which it looked like the purchase would be rejected, Councilman Ellis Pennington changed his announced plan to oppose the purchase and cast a swing vote (4-3) that approved buying the detector.

The opening shots in the skirmish were fired by Councilman Noah "Pete" Bergeron, who said he would never support such a purchase because he felt that policemen should spend the majority of their time in city neighborhoods rather than issuing traffic tickets.

"That equipment is only a revenue raiser," Bergeron said, and he continued to stress "we need officers in our home areas and subdivisions."

Councilman Jimmie Raspberry, a former law enforcement officer, also chimed in. "Radar units make for lazy policemen. I don't like it when we can give policemen equipment which allows them to just lie in wait for someone to break the speeding laws."

Dansby stated his department has made a major dent in drug related activities in Romulus and has kept death and injuries down in and around Detroit Metro Airport... "particularly during construction times when workers can be easily killed by speeding cars."

The chief said earlier this year Romulus Police were cited for their traffic safety record in 1992, including a stretch when 3,000 traffic summonses were issued including one for a motorist traveling more than 90 mph in a construction zone.

But Raspberry continued to insist "I-94 is not our responsibility...let the State Police do their job and cover that expressway. You are just asking for another gadget."

Bergeron jumped back into the fray by charging the chief and some of his "arrogant" officers do not live in Romulus or they would hear the constant cry for more police officers on the streets.

Councilman Randolph Gear added another negative voice. "I'd rather see more efforts to close down crack houses in Romulus and keep our cars from being stolen," he said.

Dansby retorted, "We are doing that...but we want you to know that speed (on the road-way) kills also."

Three council members (Mayor pro tem Mary Banks, Russell Lambert and William Wadsworth) supported the chief's request, stating that local police cannot be asked to do a quality job without providing them with top-line equipment.

After Dansby said the police do not plan to use the new laser guns in subdivision areas, Pennington apparently changed his opinion. "While I said initially I was opposed to this purchase, I too feel we need to give you (police) the best tools for your job. I guess maybe I'll vote to give (lasers) to you," Pennington said.

Dansby said, if approved, the police department planned to replace the "outdated" radar guns with the laser equipment, one unit per year.

The benefits of the new equipment, Dansby said, are they don't break down as much, are simpler to operate, cannot be picked up by motorists' radar detector devices and are powerful allies in courtroom proceedings.

Lt. Eric Painter, operations officer, said to date no motorist has contested the laser findings in any court across the U.S.

Taking care of business

Entrepreneur vows to take concerns of small business owners to White House

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

Small businesses employing fewer than 20 workers represent 85 percent of the state work force, and yet owners have little or no say regarding taxes, pending health legislation or business regulations.

That's why Edward Lowe, Kitty Litter creator and founder of the Cassopolis-based Edward Lowe Foundation, is bringing a "Free Enterprise Briefing" on small business issues to the Dearborn Ritz Carlton Hotel beginning at 9 a.m., July 24.

"The entrepreneur is an endangered species is a saying of mine," the 72-year-old philanthropist millionaire said recently (from his office near the Michigan-Indiana border), "which pretty closely fits the situation of small business today. It surely isn't easy to be the risk-taker, or entrepreneur. There are so many 'Brick Walls' which can stand in the way of our success. And sometimes it seems that nobody is listening to the plight of the small business person."

Since taking part last December as the only representative of small business in then-President-elect Bill Clinton's economic summit conference in Little Rock, Lowe has personally conducted a series of informal "Briefings" around the country to bring issues and solutions of small business owners to the forefront.

The equally informal July 24 Dearborn session will feature business persons representing a variety of ventures from around the state that allows them an opportunity to

It surely isn't easy to be the risk-taker, or entrepreneur. There are so many 'Brick Walls' which can stand in the way of our success. And sometimes it seems that nobody is listening to the plight of the small business person.

Edward Lowe

express their particular concerns and identify prospective solutions.

With his wife and inseparable partner, Darlene, Lowe Lowe Foundation.

"The president has so many buffers around him," Kurtze said, "that he doesn't always get a clear picture of the day-to-day small business world. (At the briefings) we're encouraging open dialogue with (business) panelists that address feelings and concerns. (Mr.) Lowe has no particular agenda—he just wants ideas on the table that pass unfiltered to the president."

The Dearborn conference also coincides with a gathering of the Small Business Association of Michigan (SBAM).

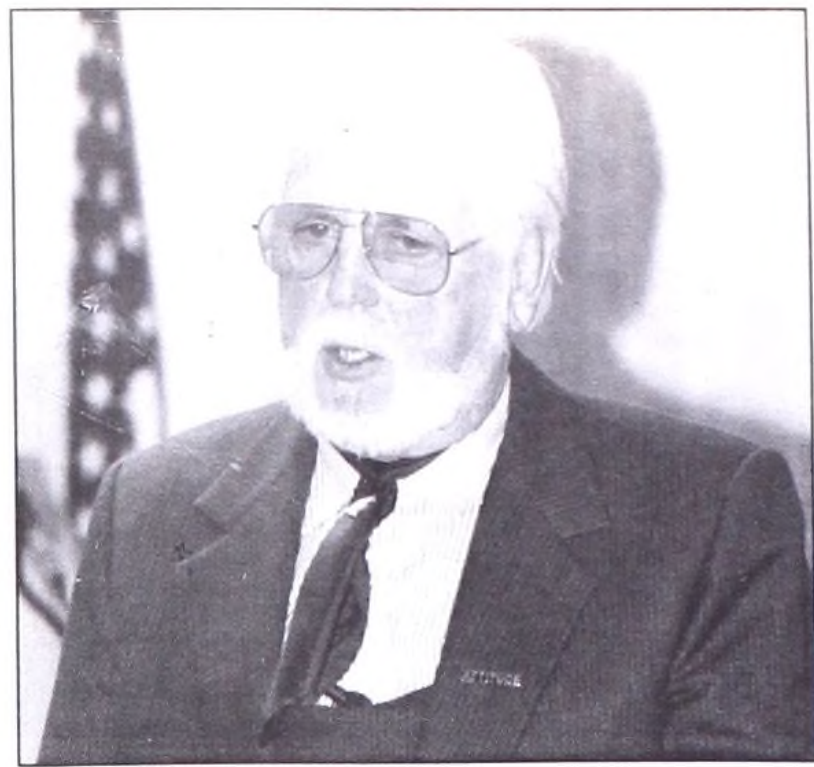

"I think right now a lot of (Michigan) businesses feel like they're running in place," said Dennis Larson, SBAM director of communications for the 6,500-member organization. "We're hearing complaints that too many regulations are interfering with business, and that many (regulations) directly conflict with each other. The opportunity Ed Lowe is providing is really welcome at this juncture."

Larson said a recent SBAM survey of 200 Michigan businesses shows an alarming lack of confidence over a similar 1992 poll. Fully 66 percent of state small business, Larson said, complained about government-imposed costs (taxes, regulations and unemployment insurance). On an overall scale of 1 to 10, small business will personally deliver videotaped and written findings of the briefings to President Clinton, said John Kurtze, director of public relations for the owners in May rated the state climate at 5.0, as opposed to 5.2 in January.

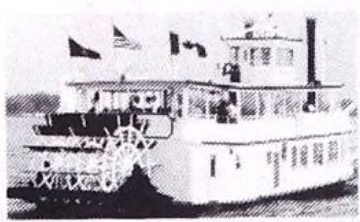

For details concerning the July 24 briefing, small business owners can telephone toll-free at 1-800-888-1424.

National health care reform plan is major issue in area

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

How to reform the $940-billion health care system has become one of the most visible issues in America. That's because health care is a growing burden for nearly everyone, most federal and state officials acknowledge.

In 1991, the national medical bill rose an estimated 10 percent, more than three times the overall inflation rate. And although that was the smallest percentage increase since 1987, health care spending as a share of the gross national product rose 0.3 points last year, to 12.5 percent, and is expected to top 13 percent by the end of 1993.

The biggest health care buyers, government and employers, are growing frustrated handling more of the cost burden. And yet nearly 35 million people remain uninsured. Evidence that many of these people are workers and/or their spouses and children has prompted the U.S. Congress and President Bill Clinton to expand employer-provided and government-mandated health coverage.

Hillary Rodham Clinton has been charged by the president with finding and outlining a health-care program that's affordable and offers the working poor basic health coverage. The first lady has been conducting hearings for the last several months with health-care officials, business people and local legislators to determine the best possible plan before presenting her findings to the president sometime this fall.

A number of options have been proposed by national experts during hearings across the country including:

- Dr. Raymond Scaletter, chairman of the American Medical Association: "Contrary to perceptions, this nation does have experience in both health-system reform and controlling costs. One lesson to be gained from experience is that true effective cost control has never been achieved in this or any other economy through arbitrary caps on spending or price controls.

- "We have suggested a better way, a partnership between government, physicians, employers and others. By working together to isolate the costly failures in the health-care system, true budget predictability can be brought to this nation's health-care costs without limiting patients' access to medical care."

- Virginia Trotter Betts, president of the American Nurses Association:

"The single best cost-savings measure is to move away from the expensive medical model of illness care that now exists in our country.

"Organized nursing believes that the high cost of physician-centered, hospital-oriented, acute care can be greatly reduced through a new emphasis on primary care delivered in community-based settings, we mean delivery of an array of health services in schools, work sites, day-care centers and community clinics, as well as home-based care, thus limiting the utilization of specialists, hospitals and expensive technology."

- Sheldon Goldstein, executive director of the National Association of Social Workers:

"Prevention is so important to this whole effort and early identification. We see the same issue with mental health as we now see in the medical system where a person, because they haven't been able to afford health care, shows up in the emergency room and end up-go right to the intensive care unit, where if they had been able to see a doctor a month earlier, maybe just a prescription of penicillin would have taken care of the problem. It's true also with kids.

"That's why we feel that this has to be seen on a par with other medical services because you pay now or you pay later."

- Dr. Janet Orient, executive director of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons:

"The most important thing is to allow the patient to have control over his own money in an individual medical savings account instead of turning it all over to a third party. We believe the medical costs could be decreased probably by 25 percent just by instituting individual medical accounts for all Americans."

A recent survey conducted by the (U.S.) Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources provides new information on workers and firms without health coverage and on the cost of providing certain health benefits.

The conclusion of the study said that employers should offer a minimum package of health coverage benefits to all adult employees working more than 17.5 hours per week and to their dependents. The study outlines minimum benefit and cost-sharing standards that could require higher deductibles, co-insurance payments, or employee contributions, as long as the employer's contribution was equivalent to that required under the minimum benefit plan.

Employers with fewer than five employees could phase in coverage over five years, the study said, but must provide catastrophic coverage after three years. A proposed bill also must provide six to eight regional pools for insuring smaller groups. Current sales expenses, administrative costs and profit currently account for an estimated 25 percent of small business employers premiums. The regional plan could reduce that figure to 15 percent, according to the study.

Hillary Rodham Clinton is expected to make her findings available to her husband this September. She said how to fund minimum health-care programs for the unemployed and unemployable is still being considered by health-care and financial experts.

"I don't think there's any doubt the American public does want fundamental health-care reform," the president's wife said recently.

When it comes to pitching, you can't fine a better candidate than Wayne player Tadd Kempainen. Off to a late start due to the unexpected illness of their coach, Kempainen kept the Zebras in the title race right down to the final weeks. He worked 57 1/3 innings and allowed 35 runs (only 17 were earned) and 48 hits, for a 2.08 ERA.

Wayne Memorial

Mike Stafford

One of the most sought-after prep players this season, blue chip Plymouth-Canton first baseman Mike Stafford received a full-ride scholarship to attend Ohio State University in the fall where he should add to his already brilliant baseball career. The 6-1, 170-pound Stafford batted .500 most of the season.

Plymouth-Canton

Bill Romej

A controlled hitter who stroked 28 hits in 76 at-bats, Wayne Memorial High School junior Bill Romej carved out an impressive .368 batting average for the 1993 season. A crafty third baseman who has two years of varsity experience behind him, 26 of Romej's 28 hits went for singles. He had two doubles.

Wayne Memorial

Aaron Scheffer

One of the keys to Westland John Glenn High School baseball success during the past three years is Aaron Scheffer, an all-conference pitcher who also batted a phenomenal .495 for the Rockets. A right-hander, Scheffer posted an 8-2 won-lost record, finishing with an ERA of 1.19. He fanned 79 and issued only 14 walks to help the Rockets reach the state semifinals.

John Glenn

Chuck Coleman

When he wasn't on the mound for the Tigers, Chuck Coleman was an astute infielder. As a pitcher, Coleman piled up a 6-2 record and an ERA of 2.30. He notched 75 strikeouts, walked 37 in 51 2/3 innings of work. Described as a power-pitcher, the right-handed senior also was tough at the plate. He finished with a .372 batting average.

Belleville

Derek Besco

The power-hitter in the Besco and John Glenn High School family, 6-2, 205-pound junior Derek Besco drilled six homers and batted .382 for the 1993 campaign. An All-Western Lakes Conference selection, Derek made 89 appearances at the plate and hit safely 34 times. He also collected 30 RBIs to help the Rockets win their division, district and regional titles.

John Glenn

Bryan Besco

Southpaw Bryan Besco provided John Glenn High School the winning edge on the mound. With an ERA of 1.55 and 95 strikeouts to his credit, Besco was the impetus behind the Rockets run for the coveted state crown. He wound up with an 8-2 overall record and was awarded a berth on the all-Westland Lakes Conference team.

John Glenn

Craig Benedict

The designated hitter for the Chiefs, 18-year-old Craig Benedict compiled a 4-5 record as a pitcher. A right-hander, Benedict notched 78 strikeouts in 12 starts. He also had a .50 earned run average. According to the Plymouth-Canton pitching staff, this 6-2, 200-pound senior had an arsenal of three pitches and consistently threw an 85-mph fastball.

Plymouth-Canton

Jarrold Hura

A flawless player on defense, John Glenn High School senior Jarrold Hura gave the Rockets an excellent glove and a solid bat. An All-Western Lakes Division selection, Hura batted .322 for the Rockets who amassed an incredible 27-5 won-lost record during the 1993 campaign.

John Glenn

Charlie DuDonis

Hard-work paid off for Charlie DuDonis, who batted an incredible .429 for Romulus, this year. A senior catcher, DuDonis hammered two homers, collected four doubles and 24 RBIs. He also scored 26 times and stole 20 bases and earned state recognition as an outstanding player.

Romulus

Brian Bartholomew

A pleasant surprise to the Romulus coaching staff, Brian Bartholomew played first and pitched. A 6-2, 195-pound senior who batted .318 for 24 games, Brian blasted a grand slam homer in the Eagles' victory over Adrian. He finished with 15 RBIs. His pitching stats include a 5-6 record, plus 54 strikeouts while only walking 13. Bartholomew's ERA was 2.26.

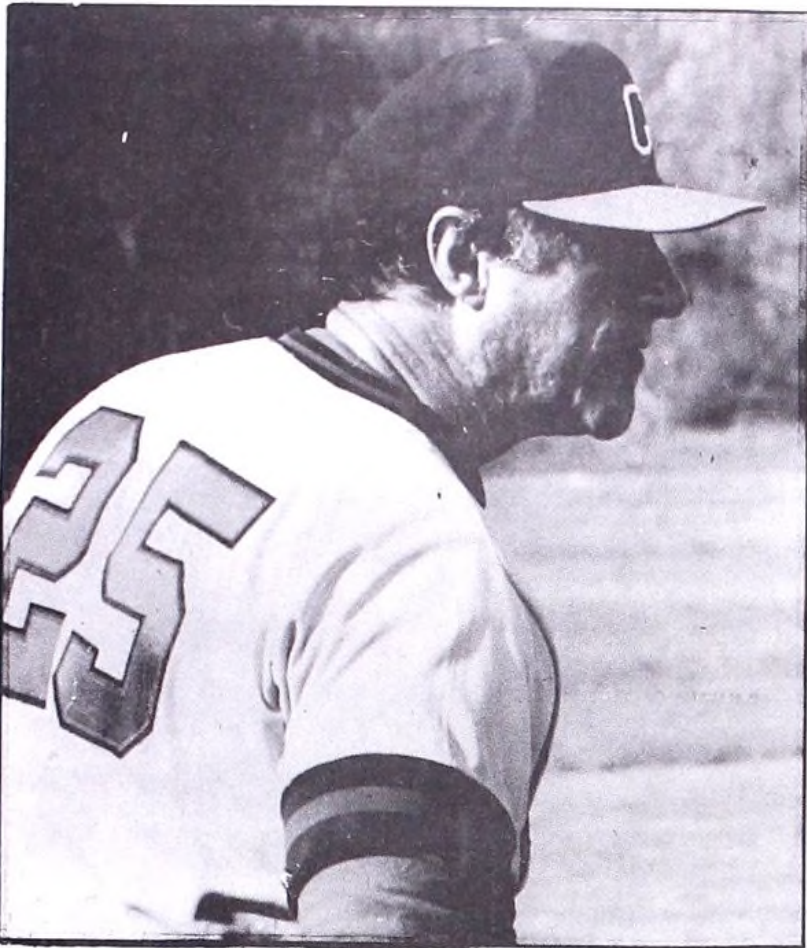

Romulus

Bryan Zarosley

After a successful prep career, Bryan Zarosley will be wearing a Ferris State College baseball uniform next year. The senior Plymouth-Salem outfielder hit .396 during the 1993 Rocks campaign, collecting 34 hits in 84 at bats. He also slammed two roundtrippers and managed to successfully steal bases 16 out of 18 attempts.

Coach Norm Hoenes...ANP Coach of the Year.

Glenn's Norm Hoenes is coach of the year

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

There is a reason Westland John Glenn High School has earned the respect of the state on the baseball diamond. And that reason is Norm Hoenes.

For more than 25 years, the Rocket skipper has put teams together that have constantly surfaced as winners. And the 1993 Westland John Glenn team was no exception.

Although there are a lot of fans who would say that winning is all that counts, the veteran Rocket coach disagrees. Winning is not the end, but just one lesson in life.

Glenn managed to compile an enviable 27-5 overall record and made back-to-back appearances in the Class A state semifinals, thanks to the efforts of coach Hoenes and a cadre of Rockets who earned state-wide recognition as some of the finest young baseball talent in Michigan this year.

"We have a tradition here at Glenn that I feel is unique, that is, our team is like a family. We work together for the good of that family. And if we happen to win, well that's just an added dividend. Winning and losing are experiences that help us learn about life."

Before The Associated Newspapers' Sports Staff wraps up the exciting 1993 baseball campaign, the ANP writers believe it is fitting to bestow yet another honor upon Norm Hoenes. He is our unanimous choice as Coach of the Year.

Jeremy Cox

One of the most versatile players in the 1993 Wayne Memorial High School line up was Jeremy Cox, who pitched, played the outfield and was the DH for the Zebras. He also batted .452, collecting 19 hits, including a triple, homer, three doubles in 42 appearances at the plate. Cox also scored 10 runs and batted in an additional 15 for a team.

Wayne Memorial

Ralph Truitt

A multi-talented athlete who also was an All-area pick in football, Belleville player Ralph Truitt is a left-handed batter who hammered three homers, four triples and tied the doubles' record with seven en route to an impressive .366 batting average this season. Truitt led the Tigers in runs scored (36) and stolen bases (22).

Belleville

Greg Nesbitt

Rounding out the Westland John Glenn High School formidable pitching staff, senior Greg Nesbitt went undefeated in six outings on the mound. He had a 1.14 earned run average to go along with 33 strikeouts and 15 walks. His ERA was the best of the Glenn pitching staff. When not on the mound, Hoenes used Nesbitt in the outfield where he also stood out.

Stepping down

Veteran Wayne official to leave public service

By MARGO DEWEY
ANP Feature Editor

Is it coincidental that Wayne Councilman Pat Norton and Mayor Coleman Young have both decided to step down from their longtime positions as city leaders?

Both waited until the last minute to make their decision to relinquish their elected offices and both quit on the same day. But, that's where the similarities end, according to Norton.

"Those people who may be critical of me and critical of Coleman Young may say there are some similarities," Norton said. "Coleman Young throughout his years as mayor made a lot of decisions that were in the best interest of Detroit as I did."

"He was a little too pointed, however, in his anti-suburbs comments."

Norton was elected to the Wayne City Council 10 times and he served as mayor of Wayne for 17 years.

As with any politician, however, Norton has had his followers who have agreed with him on many issues, and he had individuals who disagreed with him.

Wayne Police Chief John Colligan has known Norton since he was in high school. He said he believes Norton has always had the best interest of the city foremost in his mind.

"When I was in high school, I remember that he was the first one on the bus to congratulate us whenever we won a championship game," Colligan said. "I've known Pat for 22 years. I think he has demonstrated a sense of pride and accomplishment in the growth of the city. I think we will all miss him."

Former city manager Tom Daily worked with Norton his entire career with the city.

"He was a big help to me while I was city manager," Daily said. "Especially when it

I hope he's going to continue to be a strong supporter and advocator of Wayne. We'll miss him.

- Jack Demmer

came to property matters such as purchasing and selling property.

"We worked with a lot of large corporations, and Pat knew how to deal with them. I think he will be missed. He is a big supporter of a council/city manager government. I hope he will continue to support the city as he has in the past."

Longtime Wayne resident Debra Nicolai met Norton only once in the 17 years she has lived in the city, but she said his business experience will definitely be missed.

"I think we're going to be lost without him," Nicolai said. "He has done a lot to improve this city."

Wayne resident Nancy Pride said she isn't pleased or displeased Norton is leaving, however, she did believe there was a conflict of interest with him "owning half of Wayne."

"I always told him when he was mayor that I didn't think he should have had as much power with renting buildings," Pride said. "You have ultimate power in that position. I always felt that the person who had the most votes from the election should be mayor."

"I'm neither joyous he's going or sorry to see him leave, but I think there was a conflict of interest."

Business magnate Jack Demmer said Norton has been very dedicated to the city in many ways.

"I hope he's going to continue to be a strong supporter and advocator of Wayne," Demmer said. "We'll miss him."

Norton said his wife, Karen, and children were very supportive of him throughout his years at City Hall.

There are four children in the Norton family; P.J., 30, who is a Wayne resident; Nancy, 29, who is a recent law school graduate and is attaining her master's degree in law in Europe; Brian, 27, who works for fund raising for private schools in Boston and John, 23, who is in the special education program and is "the most famous special student in western Wayne County," according to his father.

Norton, however, has a long history of success with the city council. Being elected to the council as the youngest member at 29 in 1964, Norton had many ideas to improve the city.

"There have been only two other council members elected since then that were younger than me," Norton said. "Milt Mack who was a year younger, and Bob Dickerson is a 1 1/2 years younger."

Norton said assisting other candidates for the council seat in previous years gave him the inspiration to support himself.

"I was interested in politics those days," Norton said. "At that time I had visions of being a full-time politician, state senator or representative."

"I figured getting on the city council would be a good way to get started."

Some of the major accomplishments in the city during Norton's tenure include: the creation of the Wayne Community Center, development of the Glenwood Heights residential area, John Hix apartments, Legacy Estates, all the Ford Motor Co. plants on Michigan Avenue including the new paint plant, Annapolis Hospital and the State Wayne Theater.

"The John Hix property, I tried to buy for the city all through the 1970s and 1980s because I always thought it would be a perfect condo site development," Norton said. "Finally when Ed McNamara got to be county executive, I dealt with him, and he got the county to sell us this land. Right now this condo site is one of the most significant residential developments this city has ever seen."

The concept for Legacy Estates was developed prior to builder Ron Story beginning construction of the new homes in the area, according to Norton.

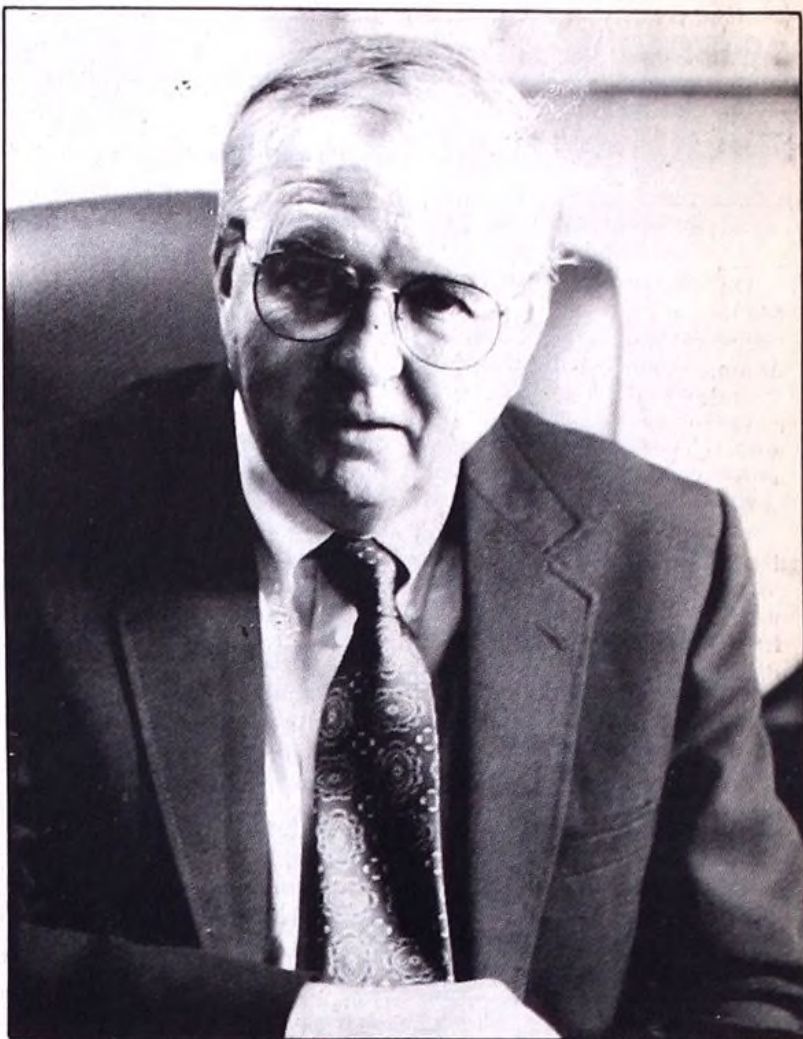

"It was developed originally and went bankrupt," Norton said.

"A developer from Warren took me to Chuck Muer's Restaurant about 1984 and said 'We're going to put 60-foot lots in here.' I said 'No, you're not going to put 60-foot lots because Glenwood Heights would be affected by that.' They wanted to take us to court. I said, 'You go ahead and take us to court, we'll fight you for years and years. We'll spend lots of money, this will be dragged out, and it will never be developed.'"

Those developers then sold the property to Ron Story who agreed to build the 100-foot lots, according to Norton.

The aesthetic improvements to the outside of the Wayne cemetery off Michigan Avenue is also due to Norton, he admitted.

"There was an old rusty fence outside of the city cemetery at one time," Norton said. "I went to a conference in Washington D.C. to visit a national cemetery, and I saw brick pillars with wrought iron fencing, and I said to myself, 'People who take care of their cemeteries take care of their communities."

Norton said he came up with the Community Center idea in 1967.

"I thought we could build an ice rink, a community center with banquet halls," Norton said. "I initiated it in late 1970. We had a bond issue that was going to incorporate 1.5 mills to build the community center which we had targeted for up-town."

"But, the papers made a mistake and started deeming it a convention hall. That started giving people grandiose ideas. So they defeated it by about 300 or 400 votes."

Three years later, the Wayne hockey group worked with the city for approval of a millage for the community center.

"It's one of the most successful entities the city has ever had," Norton said.

Norton not only realized numerous goals while on the council, but he also has been a very successful businessman.

The entrepreneur began in the work force when he was 19 years old with the telephone company.

"I couldn't learn to climb telephone polls," Norton said. "I was either afraid of height or I just couldn't get the dexterity. I put those spikes to climb the poles, and I couldn't do it so I got fired from the company. I started my own business at the age of 19."

Norton said he was $25,000 in debt when he started his business because of a commitment he made personally.

"It took me five or six years to pay that money off," Norton said. "It taught me a lesson on how to save money and invest money. When I paid off the last $100 I owed, the next $100 I saved."

Norton said he has always been the kind of individual

Fife and Drum Corps is family activity

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

On deafening, smoke-filled battlefields, fife and drum corps soldiers often signalled defensive or attack commands. Today they often signal a parade or memorial dedication with patriotic thunder and whistling and precise drill maneuvers.

"Only the low boom of the drum, or high pitch of the fife could be heard above the noise," said Jim Predhomme, director of the nationally recognized Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps. "At that time, they were the only means of mass communication."

The 59-member unit, comprising Canton-Plymouth youngsters ranging in age from 12 to 18, was formed in 1972 as an organization independent of schools, Predhomme, an engineer by trade, said. He joined the corps in 1978 and later played drums for the University of Michigan Marching Band.

A board of trustees voted the 26-year-old as director of the fife and drum unit in 1991 after four years as a corps drum instructor.

Current members, traveling from as far away as Southfield and Saline, include seven drummers, 37 fifers, 15 color guard soldiers, plus two youth leaders. Youngsters, Predhomme said, apply for membership in one of the oldest and most recognized units in the nation each fall under the watchful eye of volunteer instructors. Typically candidates interested in becoming drummers already drum, but with the two-piece, piccolo-like fife its more trial-and-error. And competition is often tough.

"Many of the kids don't know a thing about it (fife-African Grenadilla wood with 10 air holes)," he said, "but they're interested in trying. It is, after all, mainly a fun thing, but I know from experience they're working like heck to get in."

The unit practices for three hours weekly learning primarily 20 songs from the pre-1812 period of American history. Members also wear entirely authentic early American wool uniforms supplied by a Cheboygan firm that also manufactures for the replica U.S. Army Old Guard unit, Gen. George Washington's elite private guard. Corps drill instructors work from original Revolutionary War manuals still in existence, added Predhomme.

The unit, funded exclusively by parents and private donations, plays some 50 engagements each year that requires advance notice of up to nine months, and the focus of a staff travel and a ways and means coordinator. The corps, Predhomme added, is largely family oriented and very cohesive.

"It's a whole lot of hard work," he said, "but it promotes good things and shows what (a member) can accomplish. We have some families involved 10 or 12 years with several children. It keeps you focused and close."

"For those people who say that I took advantage of the fact that I was mayor and it helped me be successful, that's ridiculous," Norton said. "I would have been much more successful if I had more time with my business, but I have always been able to do both jobs."

Norton is the chief executive officer of P.J. Norton Inc. in Wayne. P.J. Norton Inc. consists of several rental properties and dry cleaning, laundry

Canton girl enters boyfriend in national magazine contest

Mirror mirror on the wall... who's the hottest hunk of all? Canton Township resident Gina Cimo believes her boyfriend Jay Oberhelman, 17, also a Canton resident, has all the qualities to win the Teen Magazine Guy of the Year contest.

Cimo, 18, decided to enter the contest when she saw the announcement in the magazine while she was at home sick in bed last March. She mailed the entry in April and recently found out her boyfriend is a finalist.

"My mom bought me these magazines when I was sick, and I saw this contest," Cimo said. "I decided to enter Jay, not thinking he would get very far, but he did. I didn't tell him I entered the contest until his birthday, and then I put the letter in his card."

One of the requirements for the contest asks participants to state why they think their "guy" should win.

Cimo wrote: "Let me tell you about Jay. He's sweet, smart and sassy. The kind of guy we girls dream of. Sweet, or what? When he can't afford an anniversary gift, he'll draw me a picture of a rose and write a romantic poem to go with it."

"Smart? He's got a grade point average I could only dream of. Sassy? On my birthday, he kidnapped me and took me to a park for a picnic for two complete with flowers, candy and sparkling cider."

"Varsity is his favorite thing even though he broke his knee playing this year, and he's even up to date with the soccer fashion faux pas. He also loves caressing his car like a baby and just hanging out with me."

"Jay is a loving guy who copes with an on-going medical problem, but he doesn't let it get in his way. He has overcome family difficulties and succeeds at everything he tries including his love for me which makes him the guy of the year to me."

Oberhelman's photo, sent in by Cimo, already appeared in the Teen Magazine July issue as a finalist. He said he was very surprised.

"You always see those kind of contests in magazines, and you never think anything of it," Oberhelman said. "You never think you'll see anyone you know in it."

Entrants are judged on a variety of subjects including academics and athletics. It will be up to the magazine editorial staff to select a total of 156 finalists.

In August, Teen will narrow the field to 12 nationwide finalists. It will then be up to the readers to select the 1993 Guy of the Year.

Oberhelman, a Salem High School senior, said he is enjoying the limelight. He said, however he doesn't intend to make modeling his career choice.

"At her graduation party, everyone kept coming up and asked about the contest and photo in the magazine," Oberhelman said. "It was nice."

The winning guy will receive $5,000 in cash and prizes which includes an all-expense-paid trip to Los Angeles to be photographed for the December 1993 issue of Teen.

Oberhelman enjoys playing varsity soccer at Salem where he is expected to be a captain next year. He plans to attend the University of Michigan when he graduates where he would like to study either engineering or medicine.

"Right now we're riveting on our millage, so we're hoping it will pass or I may not be a captain because there won't be a soccer team," Oberhelman said.

Cimo said she is very proud of her number-one guy becoming a finalist.

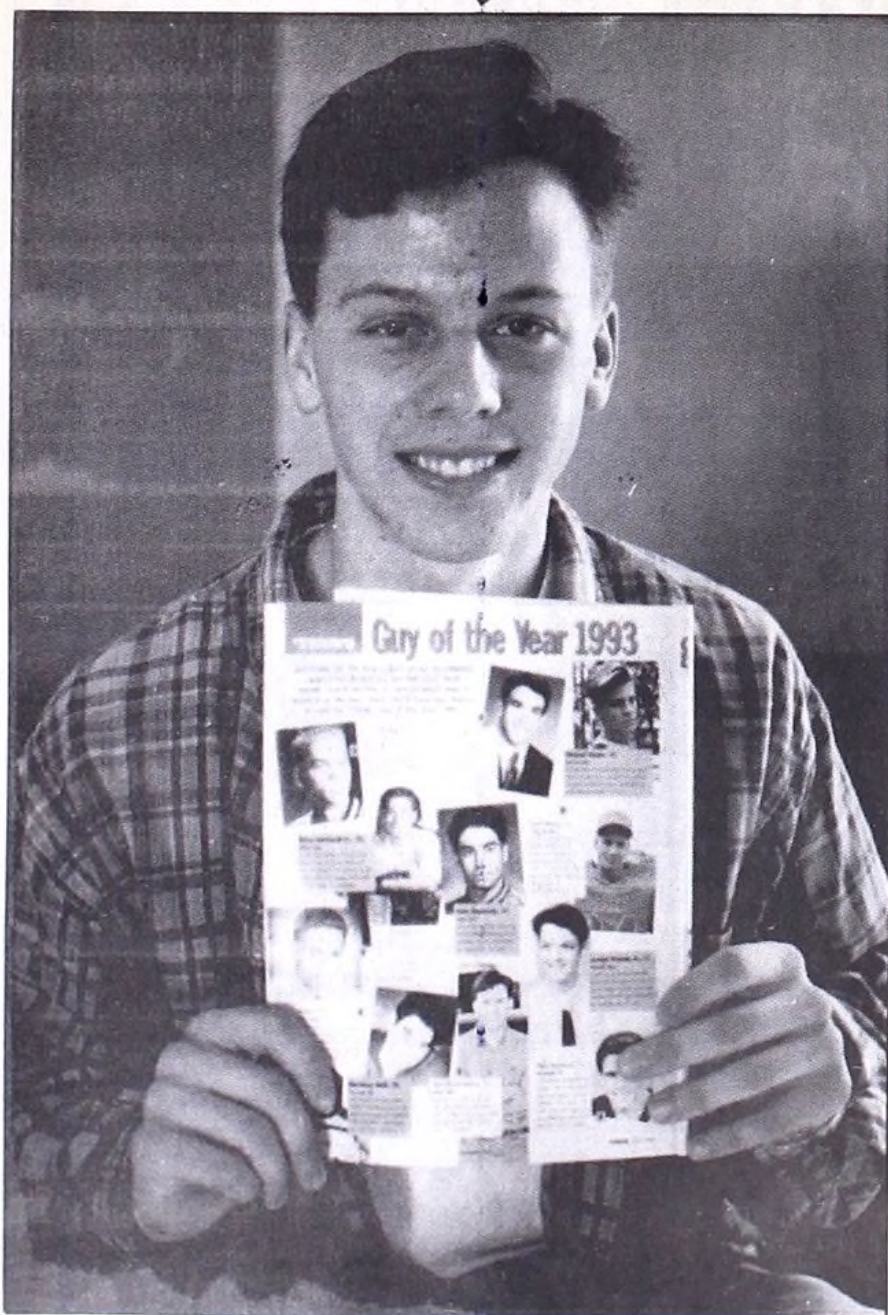

"We've been dating a year and two months," Cimo said. "We met as a result of a blind date."

The two met at a lunch table at school. "She had to go to a wedding," Cimo said. "Her friend asked me if I was busy. For a week no one said anything. Then, I decided to go."

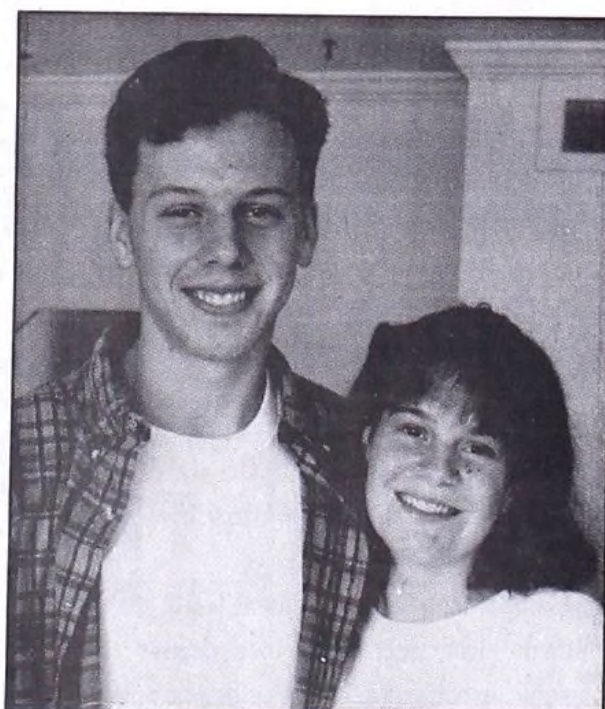

Both used to live in the same subdivision when they were children, but they never knew it.

"It was just fate," Oberhelman said. "We get along really well."

More than 10,000 entries were received for the Teen contest. Teen is read by more than 4.5 million teen females throughout the U.S.

Canton Township resident Jay Oberhelman was very pleased his girlfriend Gina Cimo thought he was deserving enough to be entered into a national magazine contest. ANP photo by Divizio

Promotion provides funds for Olympics

By JENNIFER PLACINTO
ANP Staff Writer

"Meal Deals" made money for local Special Olympians Thursday evening.

McDonald's restaurant on Wayne Road in Westland sponsored the "Meal Deal" fundraiser which realized $100 for the group, Wayne-Westland Special Olympics Donation Co-ordinator Marcella Loskowski said.

McDonald's, located on Wayne and Palmer roads, donated 25 cents for each "Meal Deal" purchased between 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. June 24.

Wayne-Westland Special Olympians came to McDonald's to encourage patrons to buy "Meal Deals" and bought some for themselves.

Loskowski was disappointed that there wasn't more participation, but said it was the first time McDonald's has sponsored this type of fundraiser and next time a different method would be used. Loskowski said a typical fast food fundraiser has brought in between $200 - $250.

McDonald's Manager Christine Poole was pleased with the fundraiser, but said she hoped there would have been a larger turnout.

The Wayne-Westland Special Olympians come from all over Wayne County, including Belleville, Canton Township, Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City, Taylor, Romulus, and Van Buren Township, Wayne-

Westland Special Olympics Director Ron Kulas said. Special Olympians range in age from 8 to 40 years old.

There are approximately 100 athletes involved in the area group started 18 years ago, with 70 percent of those athletes from the Wayne-Westland area, Kulas said.

Loskowski said the group has as many fund raisers as possible during the year and their biggest assistance comes from the Westland Civitans.

"We have a lot of support," she said.

The athletic group usually spends about $12,000 per year on equipment, hotel stays, food and various prizes, Kulas said. All funding is obtained through local fundraisers, Loskowski said.

"No one is paid for their services - all the donated money goes to the kids."

The athletes participate in just about every sport imaginable, Loskowski said. Many athletes go from one sport to the next when the season is over, Loskowski said.

"We have something going all the time," Loskowski said.

Athletes are awarded with t-shirt and various other prizes for competing in the competition.

"It's a very big program in Wayne-Westland," she said.

Loskowski said more coaches and athletes are needed. Those interested should contact Kulas at 729-2579.

Enjoying the benefits of the recent MacDonalds restaurant "Meal Deals" promotion to benefit the Special Olympics events are Marcella Loskowski, left, Kevin Sluter, Special Olympics instructor Glenda Lundy, MacDonald's employee Marlane Miastkowski, Heather Roberts, Michael Lundy and Sara Loskowski. Resident sailors return to California home

Canton Township sailors Larry Ferguson, a 1990 graduate of Canton High School, and Stephen Hoffman, a 1987 graduate of Bishop Borgess High School, recently returned to California aboard the aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, homeported in San Diego, from a six-month deployment to the Western Pacific and Persian Gulf as the command ship of the battle group.

Ferguson, a 3rd Class Petty

Officer, and Hoffman a Navy Fireman, were deployed with the USS Kitty Hawk Battle Group who participated in the relief effort Operation Restore Hope by supporting the delivery of food and medical supplies to key relief centers in Somalia. The battle group also participated in Operation Southern Watch, enforcing the United Nations-imposed "no-fly" zone over southern Iraq in conjunction with French.

JUST MARRIED

Hughes-Mayer

Sandra Hughes became the bride of John E. Mayer during a late afternoon ceremony at the Evangel Temple Assembly of God in Ann Arbor on June 26, 1993.

Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was the Rev. Kenneth Miller. The church was decorated with white opalescent pew bows, heart-shaped candelabras and an arch adorned with white roses and ivy. Soloist Bruce Hayes sang as the wedding guests were seated and sang The Wedding Song when the couple lit the unity candle near the end of the nuptials.

The bride wore a satin, mermaid-style gown which was heavily beaded and sequined. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline with short sleeves accented with long, sequined gloves. The dress was further enhanced with a cathedral-length train. Her cathedral-length veil was held in place with a tiara. She carried a bouquet of white and pink roses cascading with pink and opalescent pearls accenting the flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, John G. Hughes of Manchester.

Acting as maid of honor at the nuptials was Jaime Woodard of Ypsilanti, a sister of the bride. She wore a teal sheath-styled dress with an organza overlay and teal, pink and white side comb set into a French twist in her hair. Her bouquet was teal, pink and white flowers.

Bridesmaids at the ceremony included Bethann Ciuk of Belleville, a friend of the bride, Kim Millen of North Carolina, a sister of the bride, Donna Greer of Ypsilanti, a cousin of the bride, Brandi Price of Belleville, a friend of the bride. They were all gowned in matching teal sheath-styled dresses with their hair in French twists, and wore matching pearl and opalescent charm jewelry. They each carried lit candles.

Britnea Auerbach, 5, a niece of the groom, acted as flower girl for the couple. She, too, wore a teal sheath-styled gown with a circlet of teal, pink and white flowers in her hair. She carried a matching basket of flowers.

Ringbearer for the couple was Christopher Bourdeau, 6, a nephew of the groom.

The daughter of the bride and groom, Ashley Mayer, was a miniature bride at the ceremony. She wore a beaded and sequined gown with a 2-foot train. She was escorted down the aisle by the step-father of the bride, James Millen.

Greg Der-Stepanian of Mount Clemens, a friend of the groom, performed the duties of best man at the ceremony.

Groomsmen and ushers included Jim Gasior of Canton Township, a friend of the groom, Mike Woodard of Ypsilanti, a brother of the bride, David Bieszk of Portage, Mich., a cousin of the groom, Jeff Bieszk of Jonesville, Mich., a cousin of the groom, and James Thomas of Belleville, a friend of the groom. They were all attired in white tails with matching teal-colored ties and cummerbunds.

The couple was feted by more than 300 well wishers at a reception at the PNA Hall in Belleville immediately following the ceremony.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose an off-white beaded and sequined tea-length gown with a dropped waistline. She wore a pink and white wrist corsage. The mother of the groom wore a teal-colored tea-length gown with a lace overlay. Her corsage was teal, aqua and white.

Following a 10-day honeymoon in Sarasota, Fla. the couple will reside in Belleville.

The bride is the daughter of Donna and James Millen of Ypsilanti and Gar and Pam Hughes of Manchester.

The groom's parents are Patricia Mayer of Belleville and John Mayer Sr. of Garden City.

The bride is a 1989 graduate of Willow Run High School and is presently a day-care provider working from her home. The groom is a 1988 graduate of Belleville High School and is presently employed at Ford Motor Co. Wayne Assembly Plant.

Safety study Use of seat belts is increasing

Results of the latest safety belt usage survey are in and the outcome can only be considered slightly encouraging for Michigan safety officials.

The principal finding was that 57 percent of car drivers and their front seat passengers were using shoulder belts in observations recorded by University of Michigan researchers last summer. Restraint use among all motorists observed by research team members increased from 49.2 percent in May 1990 to 51.5 percent last June.

While the number of persons using safety belts is not up significantly from surveys conducted in 1990, usage levels are still well above rates prior to implementation of the state safety belt law adopted in 1985. At that time usage rates were 19.8 percent (December 1984).

It also was learned that less than 40 percent (37.1 percent) of drivers and passengers in pick-up trucks were wearing shoulder belts. The highest rate of use was found among drivers and passengers in small vehicles (57.7 percent).

The survey conducted last summer by U of M Transportation Research Institute researchers, included 240 intersections throughout Michigan where motorists were observed between June 1 and July 11, 1992. At each intersection, two observers gathered data on vehicle type, estimated age and gender of drivers and passengers and whether they were using the vehicle safety restraints.

The survey was the first to measure use of the automatic restraint systems that have been required by the federal government for all cars since the 1990 model year. Researchers found that nearly three-quarters of drivers and passengers in vehicles equipped with automatic three-point restraints were using them, compared with just under half of those in vehicles with manual three-point systems.

Researchers also discovered:

- Women are far more likely than men to use safety restraints, especially drivers and front-seat passengers, with more than 60 percent of the women using safety restraints compared with fewer than half the men.

- Except for infants and toddlers, safety restraint use increases with age. For children up to 3 years old, it was observed that nearly 70 percent were in safety restraints. Among youngsters from 4 to 15 years old, approximately 30 percent were using seat belts. More than 47 percent of drivers and passengers from 16 to 29 years old were buckled up, while more than 55 percent of those older than 30 used seat belts.

- Use of seat belts goes up during rush hours, with the highest level of use observed, at 58 percent, between 4 and 5 p.m. Between 6 and 7 p.m., in comparison, restraint use falls to just over 30 percent.

- Use of seat belts is highest in southeastern Michigan, outside of metropolitan Detroit, and lowest in the Upper Peninsula. More than 58 percent of drivers and passengers observed in the southeastern portion of the state were using safety belts.

Big 3 plan joint project

National domestic automakers are launching one of the most ambitious cooperative research programs to date, Ford, GM and Chrysler scientists announced recently, focusing on a multi-million-dollar effort to develop lightweight, energy-efficient materials for future cars and light trucks.

Researchers are looking at seven major groups of automotive materials: polymer composites, aluminum, engineering plastics, cast iron, steel, ceramics and advanced metals such as metal-matrix composites, titanium and magnesium.

The announcement comes on the first anniversary of USCAR--the United States Council for Automotive Research--an organization formed on June 8, 1992, to oversee the domestic auto industry's growing number of joint research and development programs.

Ford Vice-president Hank Nickol, left, congratulates Plant Manager Frank Foley, UAW Local 900 President Jeff Washington, UAW Local 900 Plant Chairman Archie Kinney and UAW Administrative Assistant Joe Reilly on the Ford Motor Co. Q-1 Quality Achievement Award.

Wayne plant is honored by Ford

Ford Motor Co. Michigan Truck Plant employees who build the best-selling vehicle, the Ford F-Series pickup, were recently honored for their quality efforts at the plant in Wayne.

The plant received the coveted Ford Q1 Quality Achievement award, the 105th company facility to be honored.

The award recognizes Ford plants "as having in place processes and systems for continuous improvements in meeting customer's needs and expectations."

Hank Nickol, vice president and general manager of the North American Vehicle Operations and Joe Reilly, United Auto Workers (UAW) administrative assistant, presented the Q1 award to Frank Foley, plant manager and Archie Kinney, UAW Local 900 plant chairman.

"Winning the Q1 award is a great achievement," Nickol said. "You have joined an exclusive club of Ford employees who have met the high standards set in the judging process.

"Michigan Truck's achievement is clear and convincing evidence that the men and women of Ford Motor Co. are capable of competing with any automaker in the world in producing quality products."

The Ford Michigan Truck Plant opened in 1964. There are approximately 1,700 employees. The plant manufactures the Ford Bronco in addition to the F-Series pickup.

"Drug forfeiture funds are virtually depleted at the present time because people involved (with drug deals) are not carrying large sums of money with them anymore."

Romulus Police Chief Fred Dansby speaking on Drug Awareness Resistance Education (DARE) funding cutbacks.

Of Note

Wayne man receives probation

A Wayne man received probation and will have to serve 200 hours of community services for pointing a gun at his girlfriend at his home on Hayes Street.

James Brock, 22, was sentenced before Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge Harvey Tennen July 12. He was arrested by Wayne police on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Brock was despondent over losing his job when he pointed a gun at his girlfriend 8 p.m. March 16, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews.

"He was arraigned March 31, and a not-guilty plea was entered," Drews said. "At the April 12 examination, a $15,000 bond was set or 10 percent."

No injuries occurred during the incident. Brock released his girlfriend to police before the arrest took place.

Final conference set for Romulus man

An Aug. 16 final conference has been scheduled for a Romulus man charged with assault with intent to rob while armed before Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court Judge William Lucas.

An examination was waived for Carlos L. McPherson June 28 before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold. McPherson posted 10 percent of a $10,000 bond.

He allegedly pointed a gun at two women coming out of the MKJ Bingo Hall in Wayne, 35412 east Michigan Ave., approximately 9:50 p.m. June 18, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews.

"The two ladies were exiting the Bingo Hall when they were confronted by a 17-year-old black male who was brandishing a gun," Drews said. "He demanded they give him their money. He fled the scene in a vehicle."

McPherson was arrested by a Wayne County sheriff after Wayne police notified other precincts of the incident. The suspect was stopped at Wayne and Ecorse roads.

McPherson was arraigned June 19, and a $70,000 bond or 10 percent was set.

Wayne man charged with breaking and entering

A Wayne man charged with breaking and entering is expected to appear for an arraignment on information July 26 in Detroit Wayne County Recorder's Court.

Juan Aragon, 19, allegedly took jewelry from Michigan Auto Auction on Michigan Avenue and attempted to take jewelry from Leo's Jewelry on Michigan Avenue 3:20 a.m. July 4, according to Wayne police Lt. Mel Drews.

"Officer Bruce Wolfgram apprehended him as he was fleeing from Leo's," Drew said. "He has no criminal history."

Aragon was arraigned July 5 in an out county court, and a $10,000 bond or 10 percent was set.

He appeared for a July 12 examination before 29th District Court Judge Carolyn Archbold, and bond was continued.

Police probe 'gang rape' of Canton woman

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A 22-year-old Canton Township woman was 'gang raped' early Wednesday morning in a suspected drug house in Inkster.

The victim told police that after the sexual assaults, she was forced into a car and driven to a second location in the city where she was repeatedly sexually assaulted again.

The culprits finally released the Canton woman in an area where at least three women were raped and murdered over the past five years.

The victim admitted to Inkster police she had been smoking crack cocaine with a woman who owns the house where the initial assaults occurred. The house is located in the 2700 block of Pine Street.

The victim told police that immediately after the host left the room, three men walked into the bedroom and demanded sex.

She said that she was ordered by the three men to take off her clothes. The men allegedly threatened to kill her if she didn't obey them.

"She told our investigating officers that she went to the house to smoke crack, and we're in the process of talking to some people."

Detective
James Horne

She said one of the men demanded that she have oral sex with him.

After the sexual attacks, the victim said the men told her not to leave the room "because there are some people out there having fist-fights, and they may hurt you."

The victim said that during the assaults the female homeowner came into the room but did nothing to stop the perpetrators.

Instead, the woman asked for some cocaine, then left the room after allegedly obtaining the dope from one of the men who participated in the rape.

The culprits later led their victim out of the house through a rear door, forced her into a vehicle and drove to a second location in Inkster where they again repeatedly assaulted her.

Later, the culprits drove the victim to an area in the southeast corner of the city where they left her.

The victim told police that she believes the vehicle the culprits used was a 1983 four-door Lincoln, gray or possibly black in color. She said she didn't know her assailants.

The victim was taken to Annapolis Hospital where she was treated.

Inkster police said that they are investigating the alleged assaults, however, they have no suspects at this time.

"She told our investigating officers that she went to the house to smoke crack, and we're in the process of talking to some people," said Detective James Horne. "Right now, we really don't have much except the victim's statement."

Local chef stirs up favorite pastriesBy MARGO DEWEY

Have you ever wanted to make a birthday cake which resembled your most precious collectible item?

Westland resident Tom Preniczky, expert chef at Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, had the opportunity to dazzle Heinz Pletcher with an original collectible car birthday cake in 1990.

"It was my first year working at Greenfield Village/Henry Ford when I was asked to make this cake for Heinz Pletcher's birthday," Preniczky said. "He had designed a car himself, and we made it into a cake. It was 3 feet long and 3 feet wide."

Preniczky, who grew up in Canton Township, said he was always fond of making a meal for his family, but what he most enjoyed was baking.

"I have a certificate in culinary arts from Schoolcraft college," Preniczky said. "I'm working on a hospitality and management degree at Eastern Michigan University."

"I really like being creative with pastries. What I like working most with is chocolate."

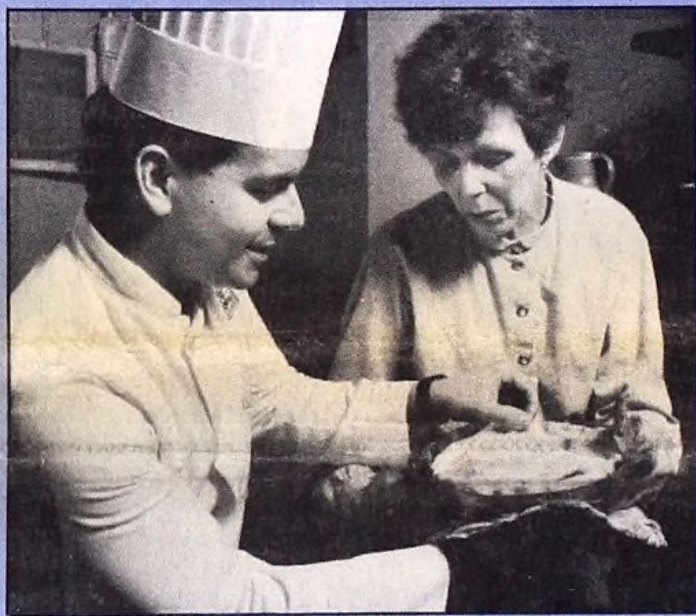

Preniczky said once in awhile he receives a request to make a wedding cake. What he mostly bakes for the museum and village restaurants are pastries such as eclairs, napoleons and other "non-fattening" items.

"Wedding cakes aren't really that hard to make," Preniczky said. "It's really a matter of having advance preparation."

"If you prepare the cake itself a day or two before the event, then you have time to fill it and decorate it. What takes the most time is decorating."

Preniczky is assisting Greenfield Village officials with a special weekend program, A Taste of History, July 24-25.

Visitors will be able to stew, bake and boil. Demonstrations, samplings and take-home recipes will give visitors a chance to experience ethnic and regional foods representing two centuries of American culinary traditions.

"This program tastefully illustrates how food influences and reflects American life," said Dana Sergeant, the program coordinator. "If we are what we eat, it makes sense to just dig in and learn about food history."

Visitors will be able to feast their eyes on an assortment of baked goods, soups and main dishes at cooking demonstrations throughout the village then savor those flavors by purchasing samples at a special food tent on the Village Green.

Specialty food will include cold beet soup, corn relish and Boston baked beans.

Historic beverage offerings will include "The Kings Mead" and good old-fashioned lemonade.

In addition to A Taste of History, the Summer Festival at Greenfield Village continues through Aug. 22 with "the smartest fun you'll ever have."

There will be real-life wizards, historic innovators, musicians and colorful characters plus lots of entertaining hands-on activities every day.

Greenfield Village hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Sting operations are a success

Driving a late-model Lincoln Continental that was equipped with a telephone, a Dearborn businessman Wednesday night stopped to admire the curvaceous, young bronze-skinned woman who was dressed in tight jeans.

The businessman's car stopped near Franklin Drive, just off of Michigan Avenue. The man motioned to the young woman, and the two chatted. The man then reportedly made an offer to purchase sex.

The woman looked and asked him to repeat the offer. Seconds later, the man was placed under arrest for solicitation.

The man was one of 11 area residents arrested late Wednesday night during a "sting" operation conducted by Inkster police.

"We arrested johns from as far away as Ann Arbor and Brighton here," said Detective Charles Hines, who was in charge of the sting operation. "We also seized six vehicles, and one of the suspects who offered drugs for sex will face additional charges."

Hines said that within the past 10 days the department has arrested 40 men whose tour of the city earned them an unexpected visit to the 22nd District Court. All of the defendants were released on bonds and have court-appearance dates next week.

A second prostitution sting in Wayne July 8 resulted in 11 arrests of area residents and individuals from as far away as Onsted.

The 11 individuals were charged with accosting and soliciting. On July 15 the following were arraigned: Thomas S. Fisher, 48 of Onsted; Ronald P. Washington, 46 of Canton Township; Kenneth P. Konratko, 30 of New Port; John P. Keisika, 28 of Taylor; Bruce K. Hill, 50 of Westland; Gary E. Hamilton, 48 of Garden City; Ronald L. Gullett, 19 of Trenton; Eugene T. Darda, 46 of Romulus; John L. Murder suspect returns to courtroom

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

A 35-year-old Inkster man, who is accused of the rape-strangulation of one of six women believed slain by a serial killer, will return to the courtroom on Wednesday to answer to first-degree murder charges.

Rodney Haley, the suspected killer, is scheduled to appear at 9 a.m. before Judge Sylvia James in 22nd District Court.

Upon the request of the defendant's attorney at the time, Kenneth M. Waldhorn, the court ordered Haley to the undergo a forensic examination on June 2 to determine whether he is mentally competent to stand trial.

Haley is accused of killing Lavette Knight, whose body was discovered next to a house on Kewadin Street in Inkster on Dec. 26, 1991. She was the sixth victim in a series of rape-murders that occurred in the city of Inkster, beginning in February of 1989.

Haley, a transient who was arrested in a Salvation Army Men's Rehabilitation Center in Romulus, had been a suspect in the serial killings. However, Inkster Detective Charles Hines and Detective Sgt. Leonard Goretzki, of the Michigan State Police, who made the arrest, stressed that the defendant is charged specifically with Knight's murder.

At the time of Haley's arrest, Hines noted that "there are similarities in the murders of the other victims, however, the suspect is being charged with only one (Knight's) of the murders."

When Haley made his initial appearance in the Inkster courtroom last month, the court was packed with relatives of the six murdered women. The defendant came into the chambers with a smile on his face, turned and saluted the bench and then saluted the citizens.

Police are still seeking helped in solving the five remaining homicides.

The first of the six women killed in the city, Glenda Tatum, was slain on Feb. 28, 1989. Her body was discovered in a garage in the 3800 block of Ash Street, in the city's southeast corner.

Then, four months later on June 15, Inkster police were summoned to field near Walnut and Carlyle Ave. where they found the body of Kim Shorter.

On Sept. 27, near a vacant house in the 28300 block of Cherry Street, the third victim's body, Linette Bolding, was discovered.

One month later, on Oct. 29, 1989, police also found the body of Crystal Perkins. The fifth woman to die at the hands of the apparent serial killer was Renee Kendrick, who was bound and gagged and left under a mattress in an abandoned building in the 3700 block of Ash. The killer or killers torched the building after raping then killing their victim.

Anyone with information about these killings are urged to contact the Inkster Police (563-9856) or their local police departments.

Chesley Odom and daughter Jenny enjoy the view from their backyard garden which includes a terraced deck down to Belleville Lake.

How does your garden grow?

Lakeside garden enhances view

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

When Chesley Odom looks out of his office window, he can view flowers, trees and shrubs bordering his Belleville Lake property.

Ducks and other waterfowl swim along the shoreline, and a variety of birds dart around the trees and flowers.

"We have hummingbirds in our garden," said Odom, whose Main Street business borders the lake. "I tried to lure hummingbirds into my yard at home without success, but we have them in abundance here."

Cranes, Canada geese and other varieties of birds also are attracted to the Odom gardens.

Odom, who is a supporter of downtown beautification programs, made a point of enhancing his own property before urging others to upgrade theirs.

Odom had a dock and multi-level deck constructed along the shoreline, and then began to plant wildflowers, annuals and perennials along the paths and walkways.

"I like the nature look of the wildflowers, but I also like many of the annuals and perennials. Each year I add some more varieties to the garden," Odom said. "I tried to buy Irish moss to border the walkway, but we ended up with another type of moss that works well."

Odom's wife, Virginia, and daughter, Jenny, also participated in the selection of garden flowers.

"I like the nature look of the wildflowers, but I also like many of the annuals and perennials."
Chesley Odom

Odom has hosted several garden parties on his property. He entertained the Belleville Central Business Community during a morning Before Hours get-together and also hosted fund-raising activities for the Belleville Council for the Arts.

Garden is tradition

Guido Costantino started years ago with a small garden in Canton Township--stockpiling tomatoes for spaghetti sauce and selling surplus vegetables to his buddies and co-workers at a Ford Motor Co. plant.

Today his heirs, including three sons, a number of grandchildren and Rose, his legendary wife, work a 40-acre truck farm along Cherry Hill Road producing enough corn, tomatoes, cantaloupe and peppers to satisfy the table needs of neighbors and friends for a several mile radius.

"Some of my fondest memories (of childhood) are of riding a tractor in my father's lap," said 43-year-old Ernest

Costantino, a Canton High School science teacher and one of two Costantino boys still working the land their father loved to labor over. "I've still got photos of me standing next to a tomato plant that's taller than me."

Working the land, Costantino said, primarily begins early May when transplanted seedlings are mechanically inserted into the ground. Through harvest (the end of this month and into August) a great deal of time and sweat are spent culling weeds, tending plants and praying for rain.

"We're kind of dry right now," he said. "It's funny--it's raining like heck down south and we're dry. You never know season to season. Last year

It's a garden for more than one to enjoy.

Visitors as well as residents in the City of Wayne know when they are getting close to the downtown area when they see the magnificent Tae Keuk Village garden at the entrance of the complex off Michigan Avenue.

For four years Tae Keuk residents have been providing tender loving care to their unique creation, and the effort has definitely produced quality vegetables and fruits, according to Suzy Choi, manager of Tae Keuk.

"Each resident here has their own plot," Choi said. "We have oriental vegetables, Korean cabbage, white turnips, and many other Korean foods we love to eat."

There are three residents who supervise the 74 plots throughout the garden which include Doo-Yang Chong, Kum-Ryon Chung and Keum-Yeo Cha.

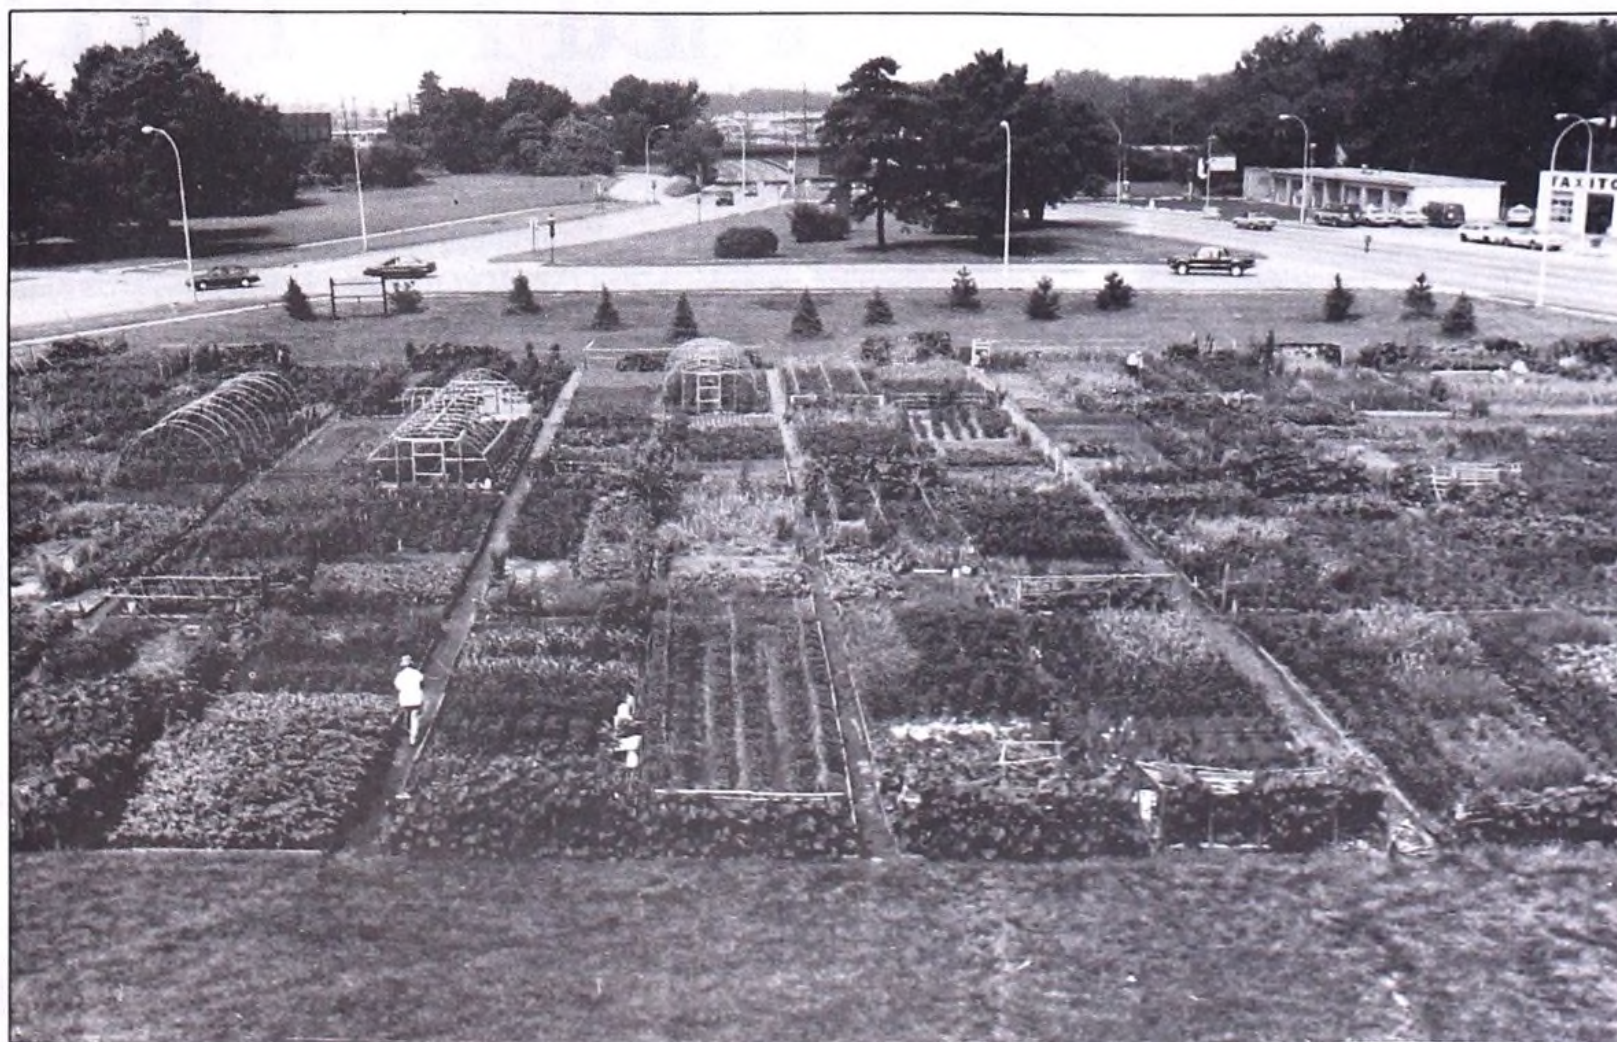

The individual beds also consist of Korean red peppers and onions.

"It all started with a few residents who decided in 1989 that they wanted to have their own garden," Choi said. "They began planting a few things in a small area. Then, slowly the other residents wanted to have their own garden. Instead of just having small patches here and there, we decided to make the entire area a garden."

In November the residents plant garlic so by July they can harvest it. They typically begin working on the garden in March.

"Each year it gets better and better," Choi said. "They keep adding things to the garden. Last year they even put up a greenhouse. It seems to get a

The individual vegetable and flower gardens of the Tae Keuk Village residents in Wayne have become a local attraction.

Annual event

Group garden holds world record

They do it because they like to watch things grow. And while they've been watching, their gardening program has grown into a Guinness World Record holder.

More than 600 area senior citizens are participating this year in the 19th annual gardening program situated on the Eloise Complex.

In 1988 and 1990, the program, which requires participants to pay $15 per 50 feet x 50 feet plot, was listed in the Guinness Book of World Records as the largest community garden registered for the designation.

Frank Rybka, 62, who has participated in the program for 10 years doesn't care much about world records however, he just enjoys gardening. Planting the seedlings and watching them flourish under his gentle ministrations means far more than any world record to the Westland resident.

Rybka tends four gardening plots on complex grounds and spends a great deal of his time tending to his plants.

"It's really an enjoyable thing to do," Rybka said.

Rybka said he likes the convenience of the program, which is only 1/2 mile from his home. Although he has a flower garden at home, Rybka said he doesn't have enough land to grow a vegetable garden.

Rybka grows a little bit of everything and with all those vegetables he likes to share some of his crops with the less fortunate.

"I give a lot to soup kitchens," he said.

Rybka said the only gardening tips he has is that gardening, "takes constant care and cultivation."

Other gardeners are also pleased with the program, but concerned about county plans to shut off water and electricity service to the complex greenhouse they are currently using.

Garden Program Coordinator Gene Barr said gardeners will have the option of using a greenhouse elsewhere in the city, but many will not use it because of the distance between the garden and the alternative greenhouse.

Tiny trees are growing hobby

By AL POST
ANP Staff Writer

Melvin Charette was a U.S. Marine who fought at Guadalcanal during World War II, but he didn't become attracted to the bonsai plants now famous on the island until years later.

Charette smiles when he says, "You have to understand there just weren't any bonsai (pronounced bone-sigh) plants available on Guadalcanal when the U.S. Marines arrived."

But several years after the end of the war, Charette was reading a copy of "Popular Science" when he became attracted to growing bonsai trees.

Despite the fact that he has taken lessons from John Naka, a Japanese master in bonsai growing trees, and has a library of about 50 books on the art, Charette considers himself a "peasant" in the bonsai field.

With great humility Charette said there are only two ratings in bonsai growing (master and peasant) and despite his 40 or more years experience with the small trees, he considers himself the latter.

He has joined the Ann Arbor Bonsai Society, which meets monthly, and has attended a number of Bonsai Conventions in Chicago.

Four years ago, his prize bonsai tree (38 years old), was stolen from the rear yard of his Romulus home. Charette said the small tree that he had purchased in Chicago had a trunk with a 10-inch diameter and was valued at about $2,400.

His current crop, most of which he started from snips from other trees, has little financial value, but are ornamental joys for him and his family.

In addition to his bonsai library, Charette also has purchased a set of bonsai tools.

There are hundreds of rules to learn when growing bonsai plants, because there are so many varieties, he explained.

"Just like other garden types, some bonsai plants like the sun and others the shade, some like sandy soil and others deep mulch. I've been in the field for more than 40 years and I'm still learning," Charette admitted.

Tae Keuk residents also plant sesame seeds which they use to make cooking oil or as a seasoning.

Freshly harvested produce is sold in front of the family home in a neatly arranged cart, as it has been for years. But the cycle may be winding slowly down, according to Costantino. His brother, Richard, is opening a township restaurant (Rose's after their mother), plus planting costs and taxes are quickly becoming prohibitive.

Romulus officials reprimand each other for late tax billing

Late tax bill mailings created intense feelings amongst Romulus city and school board officials last week, with City Assessor Matt Raftary rapping Romulus School officials with being late with their listings and his fellow City Treasurer James Napiorkowski with rushing incorrect data into the system.

Raftary, in a memo to Mayor Beverly McAnally, said the "foremost reason" for the "inexcusable" delay in tax bill mailings was that the school district failed to adopt and submit millage rates to the city until June 30.

The city assessor wrote he "expressly instructed" Napiorkowski "not to print bills until we had verified all of the tax spreads...and then found out that the treasurer had used erroneous millage rates for both the Romulus and Woodhaven School Districts" in preparing bills.

Raftary wrote McAnally "therefore it is our recommendation that, in the future, the treasurer not be allowed to print tax rolls or bills without the prior written approval from the assessor."

He also asked that Napiorkowski strictly enforce the agreement with the school

"And then people want you to keep (produce) prices the same as they were 10 years ago," he added. "Those days are gone. You can't grow and market something at a loss."

"But it's true what they say," Costantino hastily added, "you can take the boy out of the farm, but you really can't take the farm out of the boy. Farming is in our blood and I guess it never leaves."

districts and if they do not turn in millage figures in time, refuse to print out summer tax figures on the city residents' bills.

Both Superintendent Dr. William Bedell and Napiorkowski feeling stung by Raftary's complaints, struck back with memos of their own.

Napiorkowski complained that he had asked for an early computer test with the assessor's office since this was "the first tax collection of which the data would come directly from the assessor and not Wayne County."

But he wrote that Raftary felt it wasn't necessary, since voters were to decide on the Proposal A issue on June 2.

Thus the test files were not sent until June 23, Napiorkowski said, and at that time we found one parcel had an incorrect assessed value, 88 special assessment items were identified to parcels which no longer existed and 645 parcels had to be edited for owner name and address.

Turning the issue around on Raftary, Napiorkowski said the assessor "should keep in mind that state law requires Raftary to complete a assessment roll by the 10th day after adjournment of the Board of Review."

Neckties are knotty part of attire

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Although neckties are a standard part of men's attire today, it wasn't until the days of British dandy Beau Brummell that flowered, silk cravats became fashionable.

The modern tie evolved from a wide band, which was worn around the neck and draped on the chest during the 18th and 19th centuries. The narrow tie was introduced in the 19th century.

Throughout their history, ties have had their fashion ups and downs. Sultry screen actress Marlene Dietrich made the tie a fashion statement for women in the mid-1930s. While women previously wore ribbons or scarves around their necks, Dietrich donned a man's tie to complement her tailored suit and popularized the unisex look for women years before current fads.

In the 1950s, English Teddy Boys wore boot-lace ties, and the fad briefly spread to the U.S. However, during the next 20 years, ties took a roller-coaster popularity ride as the casual, open-collar look became popular. Neckties were temporarily out of favor when blue jeans, tie-dyed shirts and sandals were the favored fashion.

Regardless of its temporary falls from grace, the necktie has been an important part of men's attire - perhaps, the most visible indicator of social status and respectability.

John Malloy, author of Dress for Success and New Dress for Success, labels ties as "the most important denominator of social status in the U.S."

Malloy puts his official "thumbs down" on bow ties, which, he says, should only be worn for sports, not for business. The fashion expert believes wearers of bow ties are not taken seriously. Obviously, comedian Soupy Sales got a laugh or two from his over-sized bow tie, but, on the other hand, former Michigan Governor G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams was taken seriously despite his famous green, polka-dot bow tie.

The men's fashion expert also says "no" to ties with large symbols and pictures, and frowns upon the wearing of gaudy ties, except for paisley prints.

He advises men to include the following in their wardrobes: two solid-colored ties, one navy and one maroon plus a solid tie in brown, beige, medium blue or gray.

The best tie is a silk one, says Malloy, and the correct length - when properly tied - is at the belt buckle.

Bright colors catch eye of tie-wearer

Longtime Wayne resident Chris Sanders said he doesn't match ties to his suits, he matches the suits to his ties.

"I love ties," Sanders said. "I generally don't like solid colors. I buy more of the patterns with abstract designs."

Conservative tie colors are fine for business, however, Sanders said he prefers the yellow, orange and blue tones.

"My favorite color is purple," Sanders said. "It's flashy yet conservative. I don't like the really wild designs. I like the squares or triangles."

Besides ties coming in all shapes, sizes and colors, they also have many price tags.

"A good tie nowadays runs about $25 to $35," Sanders said. "A good tie means the material is made out of silk or something that will last a long time."

Sanders said he has been wearing ties since he went to private school as a youngster.

"Another important thing about ties is you have to match them to your socks," Sanders said. "My very favorite tie is dark purple. I got it from my friends, Bob and Kathy Beeny, as a Christmas gift."

Sanders has a unique way of tying his ties.

"You wrap it around twice, flip it down inside the knot and then tighten it so you get a very nice diamond shape at the neckline," Sanders said.

Ascots accent outfits for stylish men

By JOAN DYER-ZINNER
Belleville City Editor

Well-dressed businessman Chesley Odom could be described as the Beau Brummell of Belleville.

Always dapper, dashing and debonair, Odom arrives at his Main Street office ready to meet with clients or prepared for a business luncheon or community meeting.

While his suits and shirts gain attention and compliments, Odom's selection of ties seem to garner the most comments from business associates and acquaintances.

"I have more than 200 ties and lots of ascots," said Odom. "My favorite ties are ones that I received as gifts from my wife and daughter."

Among his favorites are a tie with subtle shades of mauve and green and another with an abstract design that Odom describes as having an upbeat look. A dark tie, with a reddish design is also numbered among his favorites.

Odom noted that, when he purchases a tie, he leans toward subtle shades, but his wife and daughter purchase bolder colors and designs.

"I love yellow ties, but they don't photograph well," said Odom, who often finds himself in front of a camera.

At one time, Odom had his ties custom-made by a Dearborn women. Currently, he orders hand-made ties and ascots from Shirley Geniac of Belleville.

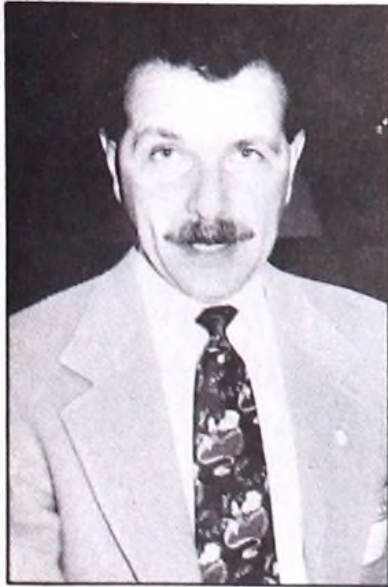

Long before bold, flowered ties were trendy, Odom wore custom-made flowered ties and waited for fashion to catch up to him.

"I also buy a lot of ties when I'm traveling, usually several at a time. When I'm in a buying mood, I purchase five or 10 ties or two or three suits," said Odom. "I buy a lot of ascots from Toronto. I have a tendency to wear them when I'm going out for dinner or to a play."

There is nothing casual about the manner in which Odom dresses. He carefully selects accessories to complement his wardrobe - no hit or miss choices.

"It's important to accent clothing properly," said Odom, displaying an custom-made holder for 60 pocket squares. "I carefully match the colors of my tie with the pocket hanky that I choose. I may duplicate the colors or use various shades that enhance the colors."

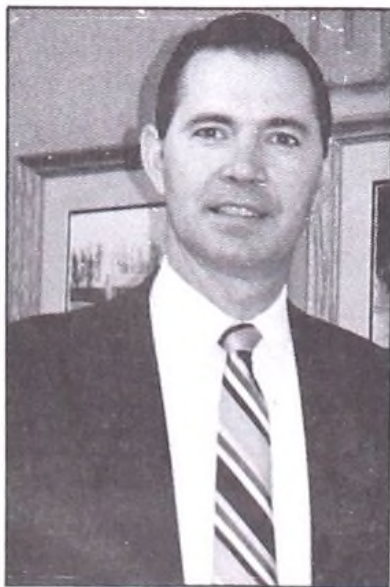

Usually, Odom wears darker-colored ties on days that he is working in the office and saves the lighter shades for social engagements. However, whether his necktie is light or dark, it will undoubtedly be accented appropriately with a stylish hankiechief of just the right shade.

Florist Ron Vesche of Belleville chooses ties to suit the seasons or holidays.

Jesse Woodell, a student at St. Mary's School in Wayne, is accustomed to wearing ties.

Jim Lutz, principal of Metro Baptist School in Belleville, dons a conservative, striped tie.

Ernie Knust of the Huron Valley Conservation Club sports a Western-style tie.

Retiree Ted Kuhns of Canton Township can choose whether or not to wear a tie.

Betty Eichholdt displays one of the bargain-priced - $1.79 - ties at The Salvation Army Thrift Shop in Belleville.

Western Wayne golf summer classic dates are set

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Staff Writer

Although he was a newcomer to the tournament a year ago, Westland's Darrin Kent surfaced as a medalist for the 33rd annual Western Wayne Golf Tournament.

Kent's 148 total stunned such amateur golf veterans and defending champs like Inkster's Kevin Ryan and Canton Township's Matt Wiley.

That was, however, a year ago.

The pack is expected back to play in what is considered one of the oldest golf tournaments of its kind in the state.

On Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 7-8, the 34th annual tournament, co-sponsored by The Associated Newspapers (ANP) and the parks and recreation departments of Canton, Wayne, Westland, Inkster, and Romulus will be conducted at Fellows Creek Golf Course.

"We're a little late in seeking entries," said Bill Hawley, who has served as tournament manager for at least 25 of the meetings. "But I know that there's a lot of interest in the tournament. Golfers have been asking if we were going to hold one this year."

"The answer is 'yes'. We don't want to end a summer tradition in these parts."

The competitors will be vying for the city (and township) titles of the participating communities. Separate championships will be conducted simultaneously for amateur golfers of all the cities. There will also be an independent flight for non-residents.

Also, the low five scorers from each of the cities may be eligible to play on their city team in the Michigan Parks and Recreation's state finals. All other golfers will become alternates in order of their finish.

A tradition started a year ago will also be continued in the 34th annual competitions: Women golfers are also invited to compete.

"Last year, some 15 women

"We're a little late in seeking entries. But I know that there's a lot of interest in the tournament. Golfers have been asking if we were going to hold one this year."

golfers accepted the invitation to play in the tournament, and they expressed a desire to come back this year. We welcome them," said Hawley.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three finishers in each of the flights and an additional trophy will be presented to the individual low scorer of the entire field (medalist).

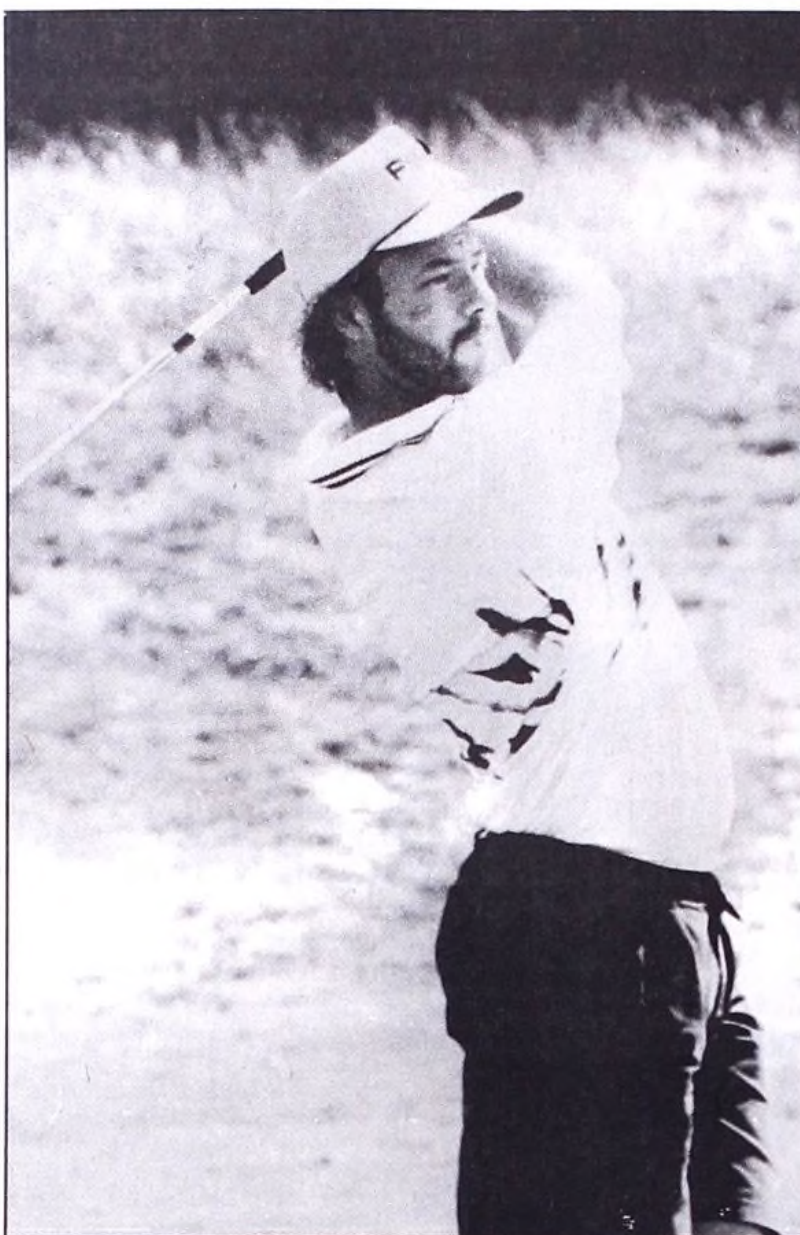

Moreover, in case of a tie for a trophy, a sudden death playoff will be staged to determine the winner.

Competitors will play 18-holes for the qualifying round the first day (Aug. 7) and return the following day for the finals.

There is a $48 entry fee for the two-day tournament. The fees cover greens fees and also defray the costs of trophies. Checks should be made payable to Bill Hawley, tournament manager. The check and the entry blank which accompanies this story should be dropped off or mailed to: Associated Newspapers, Golf Tournament, 35540 Michigan, Mich. 48184.

For further information, contact the ANP Sports Desk, Tom Mooradian at 729-4000 during regular business hours, Monday through Friday.

The ANP will publish tee-off times the Wednesday (Aug. 4) prior to the golf tournament.

Kevin Ryan, (above) who has won at least a half dozen Western Wayne Invitational titles, will be one of the champs to watch when the 34th annual tournament is staged Aug. 7-8 at Fellows Creek. The Inkster golfer surrendered the crown to a newcomer, Darrin Kent, a year ago who sneaked through a tough field of more than 50 golfers to pick up medalist honors in his inaugural appearance at the invitational. This year's field should be as competitive as those of the past, according to tourney manager Bill Hawley who is urging competitors to get their entries to him as soon as possible. ANP Special Photo

Entrepreneur fights for business rights

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

This Saturday small business owners from across Michigan, primarily representing some 85 percent of the state work force, will have a chance to discuss taxes, pending health legislation and business regulations.

Edward Lowe, Kitty Litter creator and founder of the Casopolis-based Edward Lowe Foundation, is bringing a "Free Enterprise Briefing" on small business issues to Dearborn's Ritz Carlton Hotel beginning at 9 a.m.

"The entrepreneur is an endangered species is a saying of mine," the 72-year-old philanthropist millionaire said recently (from his office near the Michigan-Indiana border), "which pretty closely fits the situation of small business today. It surely isn't easy to be the risk-taker, or entrepreneur. There are so many 'Brick Walls' which can stand in the way of our success. And sometimes it seems that nobody is listening to the plight of the small business person."

Since taking part last December as the only representative of small business in then-President-elect Bill Clinton's economic summit conference in Little Rock, Lowe has personally conducted a series of informal "Briefings" around the country to bring issues and solutions of small business owners to the forefront.

The equally informal Dearborn session on Saturday will feature business persons representing a variety of ventures from around the state that allows them a unique opportunity to express their particular concerns and identify prospective solutions.

With his wife and inseparable partner, Darlene, Lowe will personally deliver videotaped and written findings of the briefings to President Clinton, said John Kurtze, director of public relations for the Lowe Foundation.

"The president has so many buffers around him," Kurtze said, "that he doesn't always get a clear picture of the day-to-day small business world. (At the briefings) we're encouraging open dialogue with (business) panelists that address feelings and concerns. (Mr.) Lowe has no particular agenda—he just wants ideas on the table that pass unfiltered to the president."

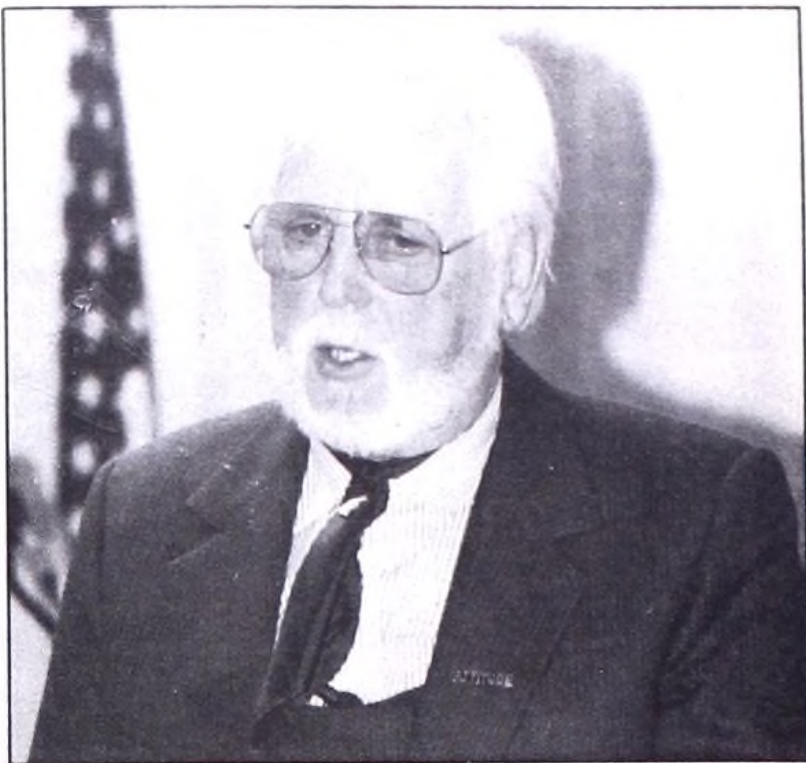

The Dearborn conference also coincides with a gathering of the Small Business Association of Michigan (SBAM).

"I think right now a lot of (Michigan) businesses feel like they're running in place," said Dennis Larson, SBAM communications director for the 6,500-member organization. "We're hearing complaints that too many regulations are interfering with business, and that many (regulations) directly conflict with each other. The opportunity Ed Lowe is providing is really welcome at this juncture."

Larson said a recent SBAM survey of 200 Michigan businesses shows an alarming lack of confidence over a similar 1992 poll. Fully 66 percent of state small business, Larson said, complained about government-imposed costs (taxes, regulations and unemployment insurance). On an overall scale of 1 to 10, small business owners in May rated the state's climate at 5.0, as opposed to 5.2 in January.

"We just don't see significant increases in sales and profits," Larson added, "and that means fewer employees."

Kitty Litter inventor Edward Lowe visits Dearborn on Saturday to discuss small taxes and regulations with state business persons. Findings and recommendations will be presented to President Bill Clinton during hearings in 1995.

Businessman calls heist a dirty trick

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

Literally it was an expensive dirty trick that could land an engineering contractor in court.

John Denski, owner of Canton Top Soil, a six-year-old firm specializing primarily in wholesale/retail landscape sales, alleges a Livonia-based Freeman-Darling supervisor swiped 1,000 yards of high-grade top soil worth $6,000 several weeks ago from behind his Michigan Avenue business and refuses to pay up even though Freeman-Darling management freely admit pilfering the pile.

"It's been broken promises and broken messages," Denski said Thursday after filing a police report with the Canton Public Safety Department. "He (Freeman-Darling General Manager Jeff Laswell) agrees there was a mistake, and yet he's offering 20-25 cents on the dollar. I think he's missing the point—I want my dirt back, or the cash for what it's worth."

Laswell did not return telephone inquiries from the Associated Newspapers, but according to 35-year-old Denski, Laswell issued the orders for a Southfield-based firm, Mike Wilson Enterprises, to haul 40 truckloads of excavated dirt, mud and tree rubble to a Wayne County road construction site in Livonia from a recently cleared commercial facility bordering Canton Top Soil.

Wilson drivers in five 30-yard trucks, Denski said, spent the entire day June 19 travelling between Canton and Livonia with loads of Denski's expensive top soil that had been sitting in close proximity to worthless construction dirt that was supposed to be removed.

Wilson on Thursday said an unidentified Freeman-Darling supervisor directed his drivers to load Canton Top Soil dirt.

"He (supervisor) showed the drivers dirt and they loaded it," Wilson said. "We basically took what we were told. From what I've heard, the two piles looked the same."

But Denski contends Freeman-Darling knew they were taking his materials.

"The (property line) area is clearly marked for trespassing," said Denski. "Plus the other dirt pile was filled with (tree) stumps, mud and clay. They knew which pile was which, there's no doubt. The mud pile is worthless and mine's worth several dollars a yard."

Discovering the loss the following Monday, Denski learned Freeman-Darling was responsible for the dirty deed and telephoned Laswell who, Denski said, has avoided his calls, or offered token prices for the heisted heap.

"It's a case of the big guys picking on the little guys," Denski added. "But he'll (Freeman-Darling) either pay, or I'll see him in court. It's my dirt—that's how I make my living."

City of Romulus Notice of Public Hearing on Increasing Property Taxes

The Board of Education of the Romulus Community Schools will hold a public hearing on a proposed increase of 2.32 mills in the operating tax millage rate to be levied in 1993.

The hearing will be held on Monday, July 26, 1993 at 7:15 p.m. at 36540 Grant Road, Romulus, Michigan.

The date and location of the meeting to take action on the proposed additional millage will be announced at this public meeting.

If adopted, the proposed additional millage will increase operating revenues from ad valorem property taxes 5.18% over such revenues generated by levies permitted without holding a hearing. If the proposed additional millage rate is not approved the operating revenue will increase by -0-% over the preceding year's operating revenue. The taxing unit publishing this notice, and identified below, has complete authority to establish the number of mills to be levied from within its authorized millage rate.

Ours.

If you've always pictured yourself working for a company with a strong promote-from-within policy, Arbor has an outstanding opportunity for you - beginning as an Assistant Store Manager!

Arbor is one of the fastest-growing retail chains in the nation, and as we continue to move up, so do our employees. In the past eight years, we've grown from 42 stores to over 135. And with plans for several more stores in 1993, there's plenty of room for personal and professional growth.

If you have retail management experience and/or a college background, we'd like to meet with you at our Open House, Tuesday, July 20 at the Van Dyke Park Hotel, between 13 & 14 Mile Roads, east side of Van Dyke, from 9:00am-3:00pm.

We're looking for proven leaders who have the ability to make sound decisions and guide others in our demanding retail environment. If you've always pictured yourself in a company with a strong promote-from-within policy, please join us at the Open House. If you are unable to attend, please forward your resume to:

Toyota T-100 sets the pace for mid-sized sport trucks

By CRAIG GARRETT
ANP Staff Writer

Pessimists say what you like, but the addition of Toyota's new midsize T100 pickup will force world light truck competition to become that much stronger and more advanced.

Owners are in the driver's seat. And here's why-T100 is a natural progression for the Japanese automaker building on the already strong reputation of its compact brethren, the number-one selling import truck since 1978.

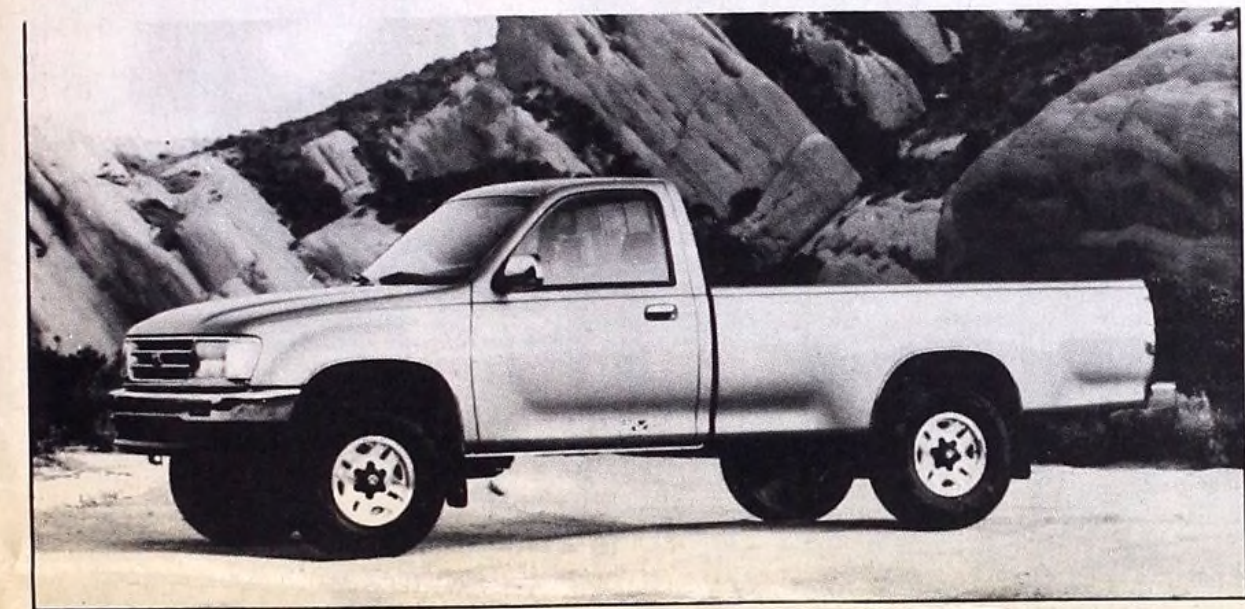

The road tested silver T100, a physically attractive vehicle with an integrated front-to-rear design priced around $18,000, featured a surprisingly muscular 3.0L, single overhead cam V6 producing 150 caballeros and 180 ft-lbs of torque. Equipped with the five-speed manual overdrive, 5,500-pound towing capacity, sturdy independent suspension, standard rear-wheel ABS and optional 4WD, T100 makes a rugged device for hauling trailers up a slick boat ramp, plowing snow or simply two-tracking through Michigan backroads.

The pickup bed measures 97.8 inches by 49.2 inches (between wheel wells) allowing room enough for 4X8 plywood sheets. Additional carrying capacity is provided by six stake pockets and dual-tier capacity. The tailgate also can be removed without tools and operates with a one-touch latch control.

The ride is amazingly quiet (although most light trucks make that boast), but added noise and vibration control devices in door pillars and the roof make T100 exceptionally placid. Four-wheel vehicles even offer added noise reduction with resin layered asphalt on the floor and firewall.

Head and elbow room is more than adequate measuring 39.6 inches (headroom), 41.3 inches of legroom and 62.4 inches of shoulder room. Dash components are accessible and easy to read. Personal item storage is acceptable, with minimal space behind the bench seat.

American truck manufacturers still set the pace, but they shouldn't forget to occasionally check the rearview mirror-the competition is gearing up.

The all-new Toyota T100 offers V6 power, bench seating, a bed that can carry 4X8 plywood panels and standard 5,000-pound towing capacity.
